Solons Restore Postal Office Budget Request

WASHINGTON, AP—A Senate House committee responding to warnings that mail services might be cut back agreed today to re- store $40 million of the $92 million the House trimmed from the Post Office Department budget.

Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., who led Senate negotiators, said the extra funds should assure ade- quate postal service for the fiscal year beginning July 1. Postmaster General J. Edgar Day had warned that Saturday mail deliveries might be stopped and that deliveries would be halted to new suburbs and office buildings if the House-approved slash was not restored.

The Senate had voted $70 mil- lion more for postal operations and $10 million more for new postal equipment than the House had approved.

The committee wound up with an appropriation of $10,000,000 for the Post Office and Treasury departments. Of this amount, about $4.5 billion is for the Post Office Department. President Kennedy asked $1.26 billion to operate the two departments.

POLICE WIN MEET
LOS ANGELES, UPI—Ronald Battles, who claimed he ran the 100 in 9.6 as a high school track star, won a race Monday, but the police department won the meet. Battles had just been arrested for burglary when he broke loose and dashed away with three off- cers after him. But Battles' feet couldn't save him. He was captured under an apartment house where he had hidden.

Rusk Denies U.S. Planes Fired In Cuban Area

The plane did not fly over Cay Frances, as the Cubans charge, "nor did it fire at any time during its patrol mission."

In the latest in a long series of charges of aggression hurled by Havana against the United States, the Armed Forces Ministry said a twin-engine "P-5B of the North American Navy with number 147-320" had swooped low over Cay Frances. The plane was accused of firing bursts from "a thick-caliber machine gun" at the drilling crew.

"After the aggression, the plane flew around the area, occasionally at an altitude of 200 meters," the communique said.

It did not mention any casualties in connection with the charge.

At his news conference Wednesday, Rusk denied the charge and commented that Navy patrol planes do not have machineguns.

The Navy spokesman confirmed this but did not say whether it carried rockets or other armament.

He declared, however: "The Cuban Armed Forces Ministry statement, as reported, is completely unfounded."

The Navy spokesman said the pilot had reported "sighting splashes apparently from gunfire in the vicinity of Cay Frances" but did not believe this gunfire was directed at his plane.

He noted that pilots of U.S. military aircraft are under instructions to refrain from firing unless fired upon.

Cay Frances is 220 miles north of Havana. It is one of several islands off Cuba's north coast where Soviet oil crews are drilling.

There have been several accusations swapped by Cuba and the United States since the rocket attack in February by Cuba-based MIG planes on a disabled American shrimp boat, which aroused a storm of protest in this country.

Ecuador Seizes 21 U.S. Tuna Fishing Boats

Ranger had been released, as reported in an earlier navy statement from Guayaquil. He also said it was "untrue" there was any agreement between the U.S. and Ecuador—"at this moment"—with respect to a solution of the problem.

Manuel Cintas, master of the tuna vessel Horne, was reached by ship-to-shore telephone aboard the vessel Nautilus, which was proceeding toward Miami, Fla.

"We want strength from the State Department," he declared, "a verification of the facts... we want somebody with authority, with plenty of authority, to represent us."

"This has been going on for five days. We are still waiting for help. This involves 21 boats—21 U.S. flagships—and there are 400 Americans involved. Right now we're very much concerned with the crewmembers who are being held prisoner. We suspect violence."

Cintas said he was returning to the United States to report to the shipping companies involved and make a plea to government authorities.

In Washington, U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk said he had cabled Ecuadorian Foreign Minister Benjamin Peralta urging the immediate release of the White Star and Ranger on grounds that the two governments have agreed to seek a satisfactory solution to their dispute over territorial waters. The Ecuadorians claim an area 200 miles off their coastline as territorial waters. The U.S. recognizes only a three-mile limit.

Seattle Man Appears in Court On Check Charge

Richard Dale Martin appeared in Justice of the Peace James P. Quine's court and Justice of the Peace H. C. McShane's court Wednesday on four separate charges of short check.

Martin, 43, of Seattle, Wash. was given a triple sentence of 90 days in county jail by Judge Quine for three offenses, all to run concurrently, and a further six months from Judge McShane.

In Quine's court he pleaded guilty to passing a $25 short check Aug. 9, 1962, another for $20, Aug. 11 and a further $15 check May 1 of this year. He gave all of them to Simms Super No. 3. The defendant was also ordered to pay $7 cost on each charge.

In Judge McShane's court where he pleaded innocent but was found guilty, he was accused of giving a $302.72 check to Merrill Leon Felton for wages, Aug. 1 of last year.

HOUSE GOES, FENCE STAYS—The old Magruder home, 1303 N. Nevada Ave., is in the process of being torn down to make room for a new 30-unit apartment building. The house was built around the turn of the century by H. M. Carlton, a retired Illinois merchant, and father of A. E. Carlton, who built up the Holly Sugar Co. He left it to his daughter, Ella, who married Dr. A. C. Magruder. The house was subsequently occupied by Mrs. H. S. Chilton, now of 1625 Culebra Place. The property is now owned by D. E. Higdon Jr., who is erecting the apartment. He plans to leave the old fence and as many trees as possible intact.

among the employees scheduled to spearhead the drive to organize the salesmen and began their campaign in early March. The election was held May 17, but dealers were not permitted to discuss results until the NLRB certified the results. Certification was received Wednesday.

Despite the fact that the union began its campaign two months prior to the election, the dealers were handicapped by rules governing such action.

They were not permitted to speak to the men directly concerning the election.

"But we did everything we legally could. We couldn't discuss it with the men. We were very limited," the dealer said.

However, as the election time grew near, the dealers began their limited campaign.

Wire Rates Are Hiked for All Except Press

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has authorized American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and Western Union Telegraph Co. to raise their rates for private line telegraph services to everyone except press customers.

The FCC ordered a further investigation to determine to what extent similar rate increases "would impair dissemination of news information if applied to the press."

United Press International, the American Newspaper Publishers Association and others had protested application of the increases to press users of the telegraph service.

The commission authorized the rate increases for other customers by ordering into effect a decision it reached Jan. 29 after providing for the exception for press customers.

The January decision had been suspended pending consideration of appeals.

In its original ruling, the FCC said the increases would raise AT&T's annual revenues by $3,190,000 and Western Union's by $822,000.

The so-called "private line" decision also provided for reduction of AT&T's leased line telephone rates—except for telephotograph rates, which would have been increased. This telephotograph increase also was suspended by today's order.

"The petitions before us raise substantial questions regarding the impact which changed private line telegraph and private line telephotograph rates... would have upon the dissemination of news information," the FCC said.

Petty Larceny Charge Brings Jail Sentence

Russell Brown was sentenced to six months in county jail Wednesday by Justice of the Peace H. C. McShane for petty larceny.

Brown, 41, of 2327 Howbert St. was accused of stealing an automobile wheel belonging to Norman Enfield, Aug. 7 of last year. The wheel was valued at $30.

The defendant was also ordered to pay $7 costs.

they wanted to. He said he had no plans to stop their picketing.

Earlier, Jelks had talked about a mass demonstration but after meeting with his group and after news of the arrival of the state troopers, he said:

"We have ruled against having too large a demonstration Wednesday. I understand the state police are waiting for me with billy clubs if I go to the state capital."

Jelks said his group was after peace and harmony.

Jelks said earlier that at least 1,000 Negroes were ready to demonstrate.

Youth Charged With Practically Taking Entire Car

A 17-year-old local youth was charged in District Court Wednesday with removal of automobile parts and Judge G. Russell Miller set bond at $3,000.

According to information he stripped a 1962 convertible and took equipment worth a total of $2,500. Among the varied list is the motor, transmission, rear-end, wheels, tires, front and back seats, door paneling, floor mats, steering column, top, radiator, and battery.

Local Fire Department Has Light Memorial Eve

The Colorado Springs Fire Department reported one small fire and a false alarm Wednesday.

The fire was caused by children playing with matches in a club house roof that was built on a garage roof at 618 E. Santa Fe St. There was slight damage to the roof of the garage which is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Chavez. Companies 1 and 4 responded to the call at 3:44 p.m.

A malicious false alarm which was turned in at a call box at Cascade Ave. and Columbia St. was responsible for calling out engines 2 and 7 and aerial truck 1. The companies responded at 9:02 Wednesday night.

ducted on the street in front of the garage, and on the garage premises.

Henry, in a legal opinion to inform the City Council, said that technically, "perhaps the making of an estimate or other business discussion about an automobile on a public street is a transaction of business on the street and should not be permitted."

However, I am sure that there are other garages and businesses in the city where similar conduct is permitted and if this procedure is to be terminated, I believe that there should be a specific ordinance upon this point or at least all practices around the city should be prohibited," Henry said.

The council, on a motion by Mrs. Betty Krouse, took a vote on upholding Henry's legal opinion. The motion was seconded by William S. Roe, but the motion was lost 4-2. Voting against it were Carl Decker, Floyd Roberts, Harry A. Scurr and Mayor Roth.

Councilman Harold Hawks was absent from the meeting, and Councilman Eugene McCleary asked to be excused from discussion on the issue.

The planning commission's recommendation not to change the intermediate business zone now but to relocate the body rebuilding business to an M-1 (light industrial or lower zone) was also discarded.

Council then voted on a motion by Scurr to have a committee work out an arrangement with the business. The motion was seconded by Decker, and passed.

The planning commission's report pointed out that "the present problem results from the fact that a body rebuilding business was allowed to occupy a building constructed for retail sales in an area zoned for intermediate business. The commission concluded that while this is similar to a garage normally permitted in the C-3 zone, it cannot be interpreted as a garage because the body work which is normally accessory to a garage is the principal work of this business."

The zoning mistake by a city official created a discussion among the council members.

"A city employee got us into trouble, and it's up to us to take the responsibility in seeing that the owner of the garage is paid — he would take a heavy business loss by having to re-locate," Bill Becker said.

Mrs. Pobjack, appearing before the council, said, "You've got every law in the book telling you a body rebuilding business can't be interpreted as a public garage and should be limited to a light industrial zone — but you keep on debating it."

"The noise and fumes from that garage keep everyone in the neighborhood upset," she said.

The council concluded that the delegation would investigate a solution to the matter and make a report back to the council members at the next regular meeting on June 11.

Some storms were quite active. Golf ball size hail pelted Guadalupe, Tex. during the passage of a heavy thunderstorm and funnel clouds were sighted near Lander, Wyo., Hill City and Goodland, Kan.

A tornado was sighted near Lubbock, Tex. and damage was reported from high winds just to the north of Brownsville, Tex.

A few isolated showers and thundershowers fell over Sierra Nevada Mountains and over the central and northern Plateau to complete the weather picture.

Temperatures soared into the 90s Wednesday from the desert southwest eastward to Texas with a few spots topping the 100 degree mark. On the cool side, the upper Great Lakes region remained in the chilly 40s and 50s with Sault St. Marie, Mich. having a high of only 47 degrees.

A major part of the country had readings ranging from the 60s to the 80s.

Lightning Caused Second Fire in Pike Forest

Lightning caused a second fire in the Pike National Forest Wednesday but a three-man crew from Woodland Park had it under control and extinguished within an hour.

This fire was located in the area of Signal Butte, west of Woodland Park and north of Divide. It was spotted Wednesday afternoon by the fire guard at Devils Head Lookout Station, according to Rodney Lewis, assistant ranger of the Pike National Forest ranger district.

A third forest fire was reported Wednesday in the vicinity of Palmer Lake but it proved to be a false alarm.

Forest rangers have asked everyone to be particularly careful today in the forest areas. They are that campers build fires only in designated camp and picnic areas where fire facilities are provided.

Wengert said the there has been some rain recently in the Pike National Forest and mountain areas have not had any notable precipitation.

Mental Patient Funds Do Not Draw Interest

DENVER (AP) — Personal funds of patients deposited with the Colorado State Hospital are not drawing any interest although they amount to $663,306. State Auditor John P. Proctor reported to Gov. John A. Love today.

The situation was turned up in an audit by Proctor, who said the funds are carried in checking accounts distributed among four Pueblo banks.

"One bank checking account was utilized for current operations, and the other three checking accounts show no activities for a number of years," Proctor said.

"The hospital administration has shown interest in depositing these funds in time accounts to provide additional funds through interests, but the uncertainty as to the correct disposition of such earnings has prevented any specific action," Proctor said.

State Institutions Director David A. Hamil told reporters he is asking the attorney general's office if interest-bearing accounts can be established under the Constitution and if the interest can be used for patient welfare. Hamil said it would be impractical to establish bank accounts for each of the patients who have funds on deposit. He said each patient or his guardian would have to waive on any claim on interest to carry out the project.

The audit, which technically covers the period ending June 30, 1961, was critical of some record keeping procedures at the hospital but Proctor emphasized that it turned up no shortages of funds.

He praised the cooperation given the auditors by the hospital administration headed by Dr. Willis Bower, the superintendent.

Hamil said he considered the criticism constructive and noted that at many points the hospital management was commended.

The auditing, Hamil said, was done mostly under Proctor's predecessor, Homer F. Bedford, now state treasurer.

Major items pointed out by Proctor in a special letter to Gov. Love included:

1. The revolving fund was continuously overdrawn during the period of the audit and showed a deficit of $27,143 on June 30, 1961. A major portion of the overdrafts, Proctor said, resulted because the hospital made immediate settlements with employees leaving it for any cause. A separate revolving fund bank account has been established since the audit period and policies have been revised so that it is operating within funds available.

2. The employees' cafeteria showed a net loss of $59,351 for the year ending June 30, 1961. Hamil said new procedures and more realistic charges for food have been placed into effect and he believes the cafeteria is operating almost on a pay-as-you-go basis but that the next audit will show the result.

3. The legislature, in 1959, passed a law establishing a special intensive treatment demonstration unit at the hospital and transferring $800,000 from the hospital building fund to the general fund to pay cost of constructing a building to house the unit.

"From information available, this unit did not become operative, and no expenditures were made from the $800,000 appropriation," Proctor said.

Dr. Hans Schapiro, chief of psychiatric services for the Institutions Department, said the intensive treatment plan now is being carried out in the regular hospital units and that Dr. Bower found it was unnecessary to build a separate building for it.

Hamil told reporters that the $800,000 has been lost to the building fund, cutting it from roughly $9.6 million to $8.8 million. The attorney general, he said, has ruled that the money is now in the state general fund.

Hamil said he tried to get the legislature to return the $800,000 during its recent session but this was refused. He was told by the Joint Budget Committee, however, that the lawmakers would consider any request for expenditure of the money at the hospital when specific plans required it, Hamil said.

The building fund, he said, is sufficient to complete construction programs now contemplated and to leave about $1.6 million for remodeling older buildings on the grounds.

Hamil said a Denver architectural firm, Irwin and Associates, now is studying the buildings and he hopes for a report by mid-summer.

That report, the director said, will form the basis of a remodeling plan. Hamil said this plan probably will take considerable time to carry out because only a building or two can be modernized at any one time since patients must be housed during reconstruction.

Those fears were brought to the surface today in a 53-page critical appraisal of the fallout shelter plan. The report was presented to the subcommittee by its counsel, Philip W. Kelleher. Some prominent scientists, he said, argue that the Russians could explode nuclear weapons in the air over cities instead of at the surface. This could cause concrete fallout shelters to turn into ovens, cooking the people inside they said. If people didn't burn, they would probably suffocate because all the oxygen would be consumed, these scientists said. Assistant Defense Secretary Stuart L. Pittman, who heads the civil defense program, testified that shelters offer more protection than no shelters and through modern design can provide some degree of blast and fire resistance. Pittman said that tens of millions of Americans would be out of reach of the blast, heat and fire of nuclear explosions but subjected to intense sickness and slow death from over-exposure to radiation if they have no shielding from the gamma rays coming out of fallout particles and are unable to stay under cover for a period of days. Pittman said those surviving without shelters, added to those who could survive because of protection from radiation, would be enough of a survival base to assure national recovery.

Shelters Could Be Death Traps, Solons Are Told

By NORMAN G. CORNISH
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pres- chief said today lives could be saved for $15 each under the ad- But a congressional study sug- gested that the shelters might be a costly and perhaps useless boondoggle.

ident Kennedy's civil defense ministration's fallout shelter plan

Thus was opened Congress' first real debate on whether enemy H-bombs and missiles have made shelters a critical need for the nation's survival or rendered the whole civil defense concept obsolete.

A House armed services subcommittee, headed by Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., opened the inquiry with a promise that it would dig deeply into all the "pros and cons" of fallout shelters. But Hebert warned his fellow legislators that it could be a "long voyage."

The administration last year proposed a five-year program of nuclear fallout shelter development with an eventual price tag of more than $2 billion. The shelters in public and non-profit private buildings would be financed with federal aid.

But key lawmakers have been cool to the idea, fearing that such a venture could turn out to be a costly and perhaps useless boondoggle.

Those fears were brought to the surface today in a 53-page critical appraisal of the fallout shelter plan. The report was presented to the subcommittee by its counsel, Philip W. Kelleher.

Some prominent scientists, he said, argue that the Russians could explode nuclear weapons in the air over cities instead of at the surface. This could cause concrete fallout shelters to turn into ovens, cooking the people inside.

They said, "If people didn't burn, they would probably suffocate because all the oxygen would be consumed, these scientists said."

Assistant Defense Secretary Stuart L. Pittman, who heads the civil defense program, testified that shelters offer more protection than no shelters and through modern design can provide some degree of blast and fire resistance.

Pittman said that "tens of millions of Americans would be out of reach of the blast, heat and fire of nuclear explosions but subjected to intense sickness and slow death from over-exposure to radiation if they have no shielding from the gamma rays coming out of fallout particles and are unable to stay under cover for a period of days."

Pittman said those surviving without shelters, added to those who could survive because of protection from radiation, "would be enough of a survival base to assure national recovery."

Need Exists At Carson for Service Dogs

Last February, an announcement was made that an urgent need existed for German Shepherd dogs to be used in the Security Guard Service at Army Defense sites throughout the world.

Roswell P. Rosengren, Information Officer of the U. S. Army Supply and Maintenance Command, at that time urged that all installations within SMC support the procurement of such dogs.

Needed were a thousand dogs to be recruited at the rate of 200 per month over a 5-month period. The response to the urgent pleas for dogs was sufficient to increase the forces worldwide, but still did not meet the total need.

In a letter received from the Supply and Maintenance Command this week, Rosengren reported that during seven weeks ending May 11th, the number of dogs offered for sale or donation to the Army was 462. Of these only 250 were considered suitable, for consideration as sentry dogs, and only 75 per cent of these passed final tests for acceptance and purchase.

These figures show that the requirement for 200 dogs needed monthly to meet the needs of the Armed Services was not being met.

The urgent plea for more dogs was consequently reissued. All persons interested in offering their dogs for sale or donation to the Army are again urged to write the Army Animal Procurement office, Lackland Air Force Base, Tex. for further information.

The dogs, to be accepted, must be purebred German Shepherd, with or without registration. The dogs may be of any color and of either sex. Only spayed females are acceptable. They must be from 1 to 3 years of age, with minimum shoulder height of 23 inches and minimum weight of 60 pounds.

Dogs accepted by the Army must be physically and mentally fit, alert, aggressive and vigorous.

Cheyenne Junior High Band Concert Praised

By BOB HILTBRAND

An over capacity crowd enjoyed an outstanding musical night at the Canon School by the 75 piece Cheyenne Mountain Junior High School Thunderbird band under direction of Edward Nuccio, the new Junior High Band Director for the school who is completing his first year as director at the school.

Under Nuccio's superior guidance, the band rendered an outstanding performance, rich in tonal colors, expression and near perfect intonation, unusual for school musicians at the Junior High level.

Among several features of the program was a trombone trio played by Bob Funk, Bruce Leigh and George Cook accompanied by the band. The dance band group within the full orchestra played a medley of compositions by Hoagy Carmichael rendered to near professional standards.

A unique novelty number, "Hey Pedro" brought down the house with laughter and applause, a Mexican rhythm with the members costumed in native Mexican dress beginning with the scratch beat of the guiro, click of the claves and shaking the maracas.

Concluding the hour and a half program they produced the familiar Glenn Miller sound playing a difficult arrangement by H. Gass of "A Tribute to Glenn Miller," bringing an encore at conclusion.

Welfare Group To Resume Microfilming

The County Welfare Department is resuming its periodic microfilming project this week to eliminate discontinued case records from the active files.

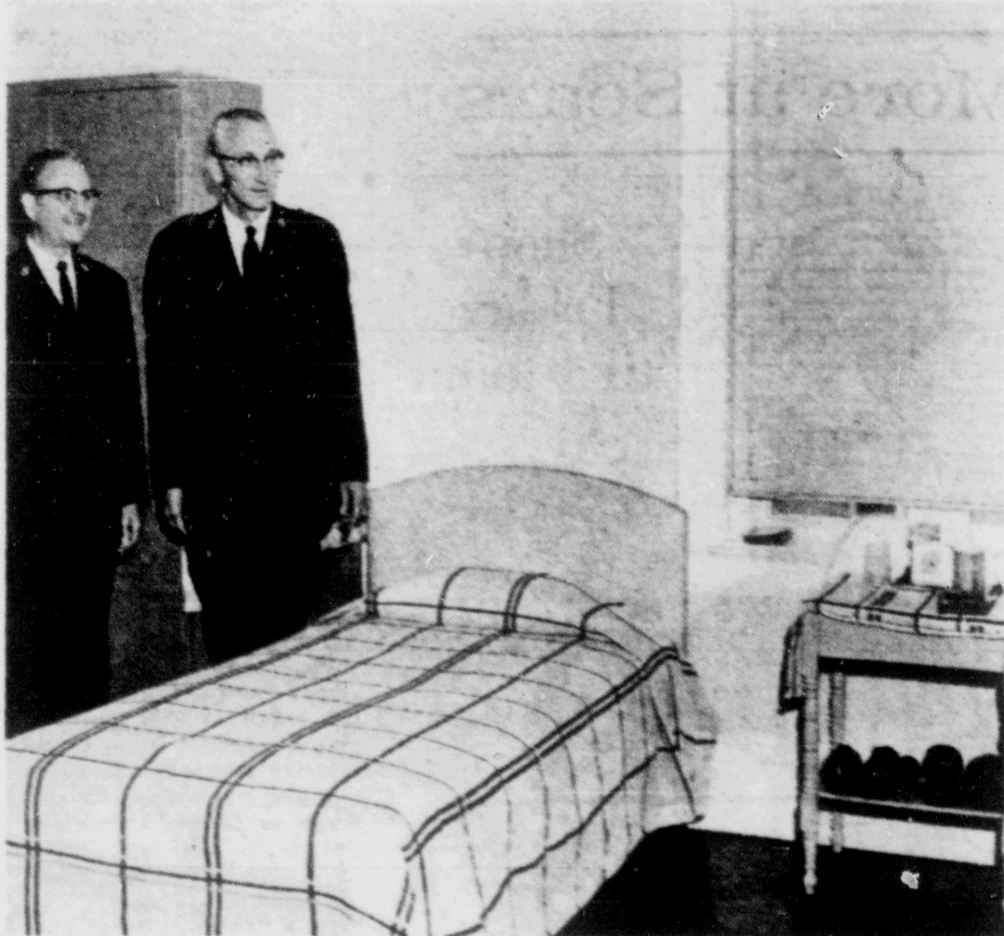

The department holds an original record among county offices locally in the microfilming of record material, having initiated the first such project in April, 1950 under authorization of the State Archivist.

The last time the Welfare Department microfilmed an accumulation of discontinued records was in 1958. It is anticipated that several weeks will be required to complete the current work. Record equipment is being used.

Fusion to be Atomic Energy Power Source of the Future

When someone mentions the words "atomic energy," most people think only of the fission process. This is the process in which the nuclei, or centers, of heavy atoms are split to release heat and energy.

But a second method of putting the atom to work has long been explored by the Atomic Energy Commission — a way less well known to the general public and more difficult than the "old-fashioned" method of splitting atoms of heavy elements. This is by the fusion, or joining, of the nuclei of atoms of light elements, such as hydrogen.

Fission and fusion — at first they sound confusing but in their broad outlines they really aren't hard to understand.

In the case of fission, the nuclei of atomic fuel are split, or fissioned, when they are hit under right conditions by a subatomic bullet called a neutron.

Some of the tremendous binding force that holds the nucleus of the atom together then is let loose — most of it in the form of motion, which is rapidly changed into the energy of heat.

In the case of fusion, energy is released in another way. Two nuclei come together, trade material, and other particles come out of the collision with very great energy. Scientists hope to use this energy as heat in a fusion reactor power plant when they have learned to control the fusion process.

Actually, fusion is as old as the universe.

It has been known for some years that fusion is the principal source of energy in the sun and in many stars. The sun consists largely of hydrogen. Fusion of the nuclei of hydrogen in the sun has been carried on for billions of years with the enormous release of energy with which we are all familiar.

Thus, the sun in reality is a gigantic fusion reactor in which the interior temperature reaches millions of degrees.

Fusion already has been achieved here on earth. The first large-scale application of fusion was in the hydrogen bomb, or H-bomb. For a brief time, an exploding atom bomb, or A-bomb (which works on the fission process), generated an extremely high temperature — high enough to cause light nuclei to join.

In the hydrogen bomb, or fusion bomb, nuclei of two types of hydrogen atoms such as deuterium and/or tritium are made to fuse during such a fission explosion. The fusion of these light nuclei causes the explosion to be hundreds of times more violent than that of a fission bomb alone.

This method of producing a fusion reaction, however results in uncontrolled fusion, in the sense that it can't release energy without an explosion.

The problem now being attacked by the Atomic Energy Commission is how to control fusion in a nuclear reactor to make it a steady source of energy that can easily be put to work.

Scientists both here and abroad have been laboring on the task for more than a decade.

The Atomic Energy Commission's experimental fusion research is concentrated in four AEC laboratories. They are at Princeton University, in New Jersey; at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, in Tennessee; at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, in New Mexico; and the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory at Berkeley in Livermore, Calif.

In addition, two private laboratories are doing extensive work in this field.

One is the General Electric Company's Research Laboratory at Schenectady, N.Y. The other is the laboratory of the General Dynamics Corporation at San Diego, Calif.

The latter has entered into a contract for controlled thermonuclear research with the Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation, an organization of eleven privately-owned electric power companies operating in Texas.

Futuristic problems have been and are being tackled in the search for methods of controlling and sustaining fusion of light nuclei in a continuing reaction.

The first problem has been that of achieving the tremendously high temperatures needed before earthly fusion can take place, without resorting, as in the case of the hydrogen bomb, to exploding a bomb.

Temperatures that must be produced to make the nuclei of deuterium and tritium atoms fuse in an earthly reactor are even hotter than those in the center of the sun.

No material on this planet could hold a hot gas, or plasma, of deuterium or tritium nuclei heated to temperatures of this magnitude.

But scientists know that even the hottest plasma of nuclei and their free-flowing electrons can be held within a sort of artificial wall. The method is to subject these electrically-charged particles to the forces of a strong magnetic field, or magnetic "bottle," as it is sometimes called.

Such a field has a very direct effect on the actions of the charged particles that make up a plasma. It can keep the particles from streaming to the walls of any ordinary container where they would (1) promptly vaporize the walls and (2) drop below the temperature needed for fusion.

Scientists have discovered also that sudden increases in the intensity to magnetic field compress the plasma and raise it to the temperatures required for successful fusion.

So the first problems — those of achieving and containing the tremendously high temperatures needed for fusion — have been solved in various types of machines available at the laboratories mentioned above.

The principal problem that scientists say remains to be solved is that of holding a sufficiently dense plasma, heated to the required fusion temperature, in a stable condition long enough to extract more energy from it than was put in to heat and to confine it in the first place.

Learning how to make the hot plasma sit still for a relatively long time — about one second in some cases — is the immediate goal of much of the research in the field of fusion.

Few scientists doing this work believe that there will be any sudden or dramatic breakthrough in reaching successful controlled fusion. It is believed, rather, that if fusion power can be achieved by quieting the instabilities of the plasma, the result will come from patient and detailed analyses of the findings from a series of difficult experiments.

Yet, as in the development of power from the fissioning process, scientists think success will eventually come. Increases in the temperature of the hot gas and increases in confinement time have been coming along rapidly during the past two years.

As an example of this progress, scientists at the University of California Lawrence Radiation Laboratory in Livermore, Calif., recently announced a significant advance in the long-range exploration of fusion techniques.

Working with relatively low density plasmas, these men succeeded in confining the plasma for one-half second, a very long time for the experiment involved. The energy reached by the deuterium nuclei making up the plasma corresponded to a temperature of some 200,000,000 degrees Centigrade — or 10 times hotter than the sun's interior is estimated to be.

Why should our scientists seek to achieve fusion when the development and use of fission reactors is progressing satisfactorily?

The answer is bound up in the (Turn to Page 16, Column 9)

AFA June Week Exercise Schedule Revised

A change in the schedule of President John F. Kennedy's visit to the Air Force Academy will make revision of Wednesday's commencement exercises necessary.

Gates to Falcon Stadium will open at 6:30 a.m. and all spectators are urged to be in their seats by 8:30 a.m.

North and south entrance gates to the academy and gates to the stadium will still be closed promptly at 9:30 a.m.

March-on of the entire Cadet Wing will begin at 8:35 a.m. The invocation will be delivered by Chaplain (Col.) Stephen J. O'Connor at 8:58.

Bachelor of science degrees and commissions as second lieutenants will be presented to graduates beginning at 9 a.m.

President Kennedy is scheduled to arrive in Falcon Stadium at 10 a.m. He will present diplomas and commissions to distinguished graduates and deliver the commencement address.

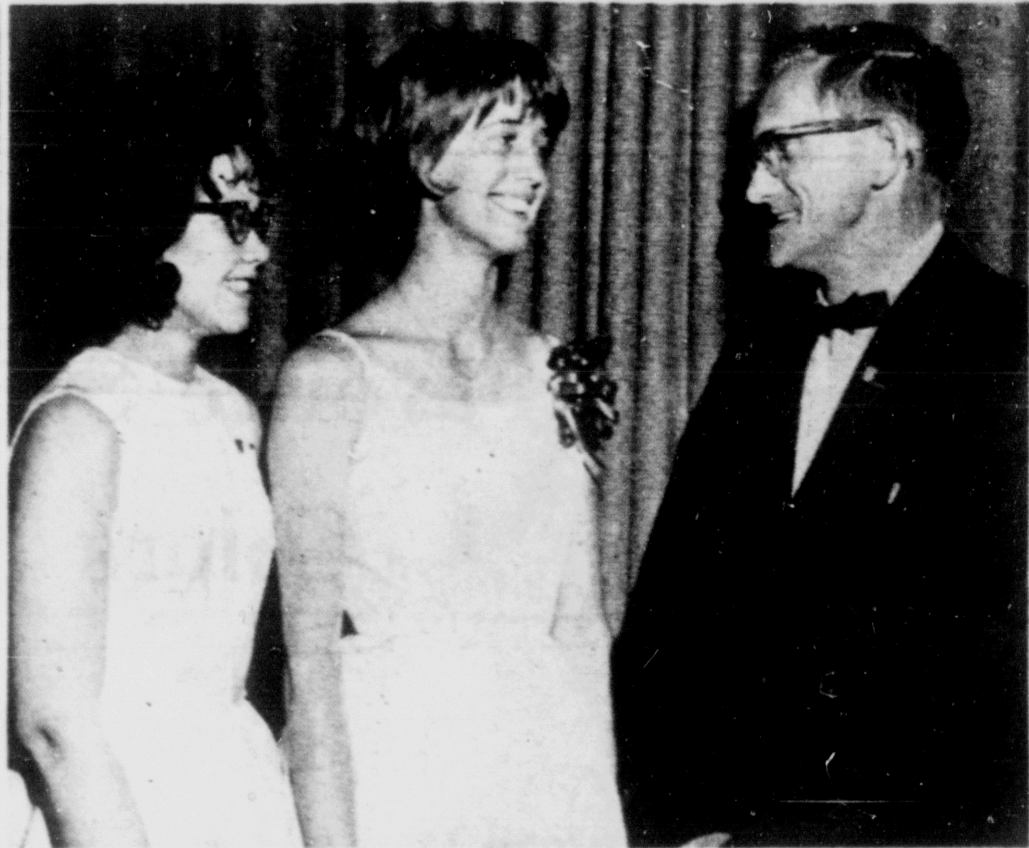

All those planning to attend the ceremony are reminded to note the change in the schedule and ignore the time printed on their admission tickets.

All 40,000 free admission tickets to the commencement have been obligated.

Persons having tickets who will not be able to use them are urged to return them to the academy as quickly as possible or to pass them along to others who can attend.

In case of inclement weather, graduation ceremonies will be moved to Arnold Hall. Due to limited seating capacity, the public will not be able to attend.

Announcement of change in location will be made over Denver and Colorado Springs radio and television stations.

Wasson Dramatic Awards Presented at Banquet

Twenty-four awards for dramatic achievement at Wasson High School were presented by Homer L. Paris, director of drama, at the annual National Thespian Banquet held Tuesday at Ruth's Oven.

These awards comparable to the "Oscars" and "Emmies" of movies and television have been named the "Paris-cities."

The three top "Paris-cities" went to three seniors. Robin Olds, best all-around actor appearing in four Wheel; John B. Noss, Man's different roles this year. Marilyn Religions; Leonard Russ' "Of the White Tailed Deer"; Henri Daniel-Rops' "Daily Life in the Times of Jesus"; Alton Ochsner's "Smoking and Health"; "American Poetry" edited by Karl Shapiro; Horace Gregory's "The Crystal Cabinet"; Helen Kay's "How Smart are Animals"; Ivan Sanders' "The Continent We Live On"; Daniel Foisy's "Ground Cover for Easier Gardening"; "Encyclopedic Dictionary of Physics" in seven volumes.

Initiation of new Thespian members was held just before the banquet for Lee Pavlica, Wendy Smith, Trudy Townsend, Diane West, Carlene McConnell and Judy Keeton.

To fulfill the requirements of initiation, each must memorize and present 20 lines of Shakespeare before an audience.

In order to become a Thespian, the candidate must first become a Footlighter which requires 50 hours of work on or back stage; then he must work 75 additional hours to become eligible for Thespians. There are currently 24 active Thespian members at Wasson.

AFA Chapel Not Ready for June Weddings

Wedding bells will be ringing this June for approximately 60 Air Force Academy cadets and their sweethearts, but they won't be ringing again at the more than $3 million Academy chapel.

The roof is still leaking. All of the furniture hasn't been moved in as yet.

This is the official word from Academy officials.

Work is continuing on repairs to the roof of the 17-spired structure which is being rated as a modern architectural wonder of the world.

Latest estimates place the cost of repairing the roof at about $240,000.

Officials had hoped to have the chapel completed in time for this year's June weddings.

The principal holdup is the fact that all of the furnishings have not been moved into the chapel as yet. Spokesmen said these would be installed in the chapel within the next three months.

Cadets, who will graduate next week, and who plan to be married in June will have the ceremony performed at local Catholic and Protestant churches, officials said.

Despite the fact that the chapel will not be formally opened for graduation, visitors to the campus will be permitted to enter and view it during June week.

Army Teams To Conduct Wit Test Tour

Two teams from a government office called Project Cloud Gap will visit one or more Army posts somewhere in the United States in a test of wit in September. Objective of the test is to try, without access to the other secrets of the post, to find out the number of tanks and certain other vehicles based there.

The number of vehicles will be known to Dr. Lessing A. Kann, who heads the Cloud Gap but will not be known to the inspectors.

The teams are forerunners of international inspection units that someday might police disarmament agreements among nations. This kind of test will be the first field test held by any country involving actual inspections under simulated conditions.

Project Cloud Gap was set up a year ago by the United States Army Control and Disarmament Agency and the Defense Department to conduct field tests on disarmament inspectors.

Future tests will branch out to other military fields — air defense, support units, naval units and nuclear missiles.

Game and Fish Office to Set Up Supervisors

DENVER, UPI—The Game and Fish Department Tuesday to use funds earmarked for service personnel at state-owned lakes to set up supervisors at the Game and Fish Department's four regional offices.

The proposal had been pushed by Game and Fish Director Harry Woodward.

The State Park and Recreation Agency will be merged with the Game and Fish Department July 1 under a law passed by the Legislature in 1963. Legislation for the merger was passed by the House of Representatives on Tuesday. The merger was opposed by some minority Democrats on grounds that it would mean a downgrading of the state parks program.

Don West, state park supervisor, announced plans Tuesday to continue the full planned contingent of personnel at the lakes until the merger becomes effective. Under Woodward's plan, seasonalizing and enforcing laws and help at Cherry Creek Reservoir, the largest of the state-operated lakes, will be moved in addition to their regular cut from 11 to five. Two lifeguards who were to retire at the lake will be eliminated.

Gov. John A. Love refused to take any action on the matter Tuesday, saying he would know the answer by the end of the summer. He said he would like to see the Game and Fish Department and the State Park and Recreation Agency merged. They are not merged into one.

The Game and Fish Department is now in a position to enforce the law on the lakes, and it is a matter of time before the truth will be known. He said he would like to see the Game and Fish Department and the State Park and Recreation Agency merged.

Rusk Asks Ecuador to Release U.S. Vessels

WASHINGTON, AP—Secretary of State Dean Rusk telephoned the Ecuadorian minister of Education and asked for immediate release of two U.S. tuna boats held by Ecuadorian naval vessels. Rusk offered to send officials to negotiate a settlement.

Rep. Lionel Van Deed, D-Calif., reported he had information from the tuna boat fleet that an Ecuadorian gunboat had fired across the bow of the tuna boat, Homer, apparently as a result of a misunderstanding when two of the vessels were about to be taken toward a port. The gunboat, however, was from San Diego, home port of the tuna boats, and said that the Ecuadorian gunboat had fired across the bow of the tuna boat, Homer, apparently as a result of a misunderstanding when two of the vessels were about to be taken toward a port.

Rusk Asks Ecuador to Release U.S. Vessels

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk telephoned the foreign minister of Ecuador and asked for immediate release of two U.S. tuna boats held by Ecuadorian naval vessels.

Rusk offered to send officials to Quito to negotiate a settlement. Rep. Lionel Van Deertin, D-Calif., reported he had information direct from the tuna fleet that an Ecuadorian gunboat had fired across the bow of the tuna boat "Hornet," apparently as a result of a misunderstanding when two of the vessels were about to be taken toward a port.

The Congress member, who comes from San Diego, home port of the tuna boats, also said that Ecuadorian Foreign Minister Benjamin Peralta had promised that the two boats in Ecuadorian custody would be taken to some port other than Manta, where Americans have encountered hostility in the past.

He said lifeguards do not provide adequate safety in outdoor lakes anyway. If no lifeguards are present and the public knows this, he said he would not comment until he was conferred with Woodward. "They are not lulled into a false sense of security concerning the fended the proposal as an economy measure which would cut down on duplications in the parks it is too late, after a drowning and fishing divisions. He said has occurred," he said.

No Breathless Sessions Mark Rule by De Gaulle

By JOSEPH E. DYVAN
PARIS AP — AS President of France, Charles de Gaulle runs his government with the steady, well-organized routine of a general staff officer. Orders move calmly through channels on regular schedule. There are no breathless postmidnight sessions, no hectic executive meetings with two or three guests, usually high officials. At 3 p.m. the president is back at his desk. Afternoons are set aside for receipt from Cabinet ministers except for two or three afternoons a week when De Gaulle keeps clear working methods betray the 72 for study, alone with dossiers and year-old president as a man of another generation: he uses the telephone as little as possible, and he does not dictate streams of letters or memos.

A lot of mail pours into the Elysee Palace, and De Gaulle reads a surprisingly large amount of it. He writes his comments on the margin, or below the body of the letter, and his instructions as to how it should be answered.

For speeches or major state matters De Gaulle writes the text himself in longhand, frequently revising it. De Gaulle's handwriting is so illegible that he then dictates the text to a secretary. When this is typed, the president usually makes further revisions, and this all has to be typed again.

This virtually is the only time that De Gaulle consents to dictate to a secretary.

The keynote of the Elysee Palace alone unless there is an official routine is to organize time so as to conserve the general's energies. One little note helps evoke the general staff atmosphere: the Elysee Staff almost invariably refers to him as "Le General" instead of "Le President."

De Gaulle's habit of approaching a problem is to gather advice and all possible information from specialists and trusted subordinates, then make his own study, alone in his office or in his private living room.

Once he has made up his mind it is most difficult to change it. But his manner, according to persons near him, is not authoritarian.

De Gaulle puts in a sort of 5-day week, from Monday morning to Saturday noon. Office hours on weekdays run from about 9:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. with a two-hour midday break.

The general wakes up about 8 a.m. to a typically light French breakfast. He listens to a news broadcast, then reads newspapers and may glance at personal mail before family mail. About 9:30 a.m. he plans for the nation's capital leaves the private apartments of city.

Mornings are usually given to one of several executive councils which De Gaulle convenes on an average of once a week. De Gaulle presides over a cabinet meeting every Wednesday. Just before 1 p.m. he leaves for the apartment sector of the palace. This is an informal, half-working affair with two or three guests, usually high officials. At 3 p.m. the president is back at his desk. Afternoons are set aside for receipt from Cabinet ministers except for two or three afternoons a week when De Gaulle keeps clear working methods betray the 72 for study, alone with dossiers and year-old president as a man of another generation: he uses the telephone as little as possible, and he does not dictate streams of letters or memos.

Burglar Leaves His Old Clothing Behind

PRIEDOR, Yugoslavia (AP) — A burglar who broke into a clothing shop here at night wanted only the best, selected with care, but took only one complete outfit. He picked out a natty suit, topcoat, nice-looking hat, one pair of expensive shoes, a pair of socks, a set of underwear and a tie that went well with it all.

He left his old clothing behind on the floor.

George Washington, who hired a Pierre L'Enfant to lay out the District of Columbia, had to dis-miss him when L'Enfant demolished a wealthy landowner's new manor house to implement his plans for the nation's capital leaves the private apartments of city.

Orders move calmly through channels on regular schedule. There are no breathless post-midnight sessions, no hectic excitement.

When the president goes to bed, the story goes, the Elysee Palace staff must not disturb him except in case of world war—and the accent is on the adjective.

MY ANSWER

by Billy Graham

© 1963 by Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: I know that I should be a Christian but there is something within me which simply won't let me take the step of acceptance. What is it?
—G. V.

ANSWER: There is something within everyone which hinders them from living at their highest and best. You are no exception. With some it is a reluctance to pay the price. By that I mean, laying your life on the line for Jesus Christ, come what may. With others it is fear of the crowd, the fear of being different from the mob. With others and let me be frank with you, it is plain laziness. That may never have occurred to you as a reason for not being a Christian—but in reading the New Testament I find that Christ didn't have a lazy one in His group.

Professor George Palmer of Harvard tells the story of a boy who slept late every morning, and when his mother called to him, "Arise! you are going to be late for school," he would say, "Yes, mother, I am, but I would rather be late than get up."

Christianity calls from us the highest and best that we are capable of. It is the greatest challenge in the world to the human mind.

But the basic hindrance is the sin of selfishness and pride. Jesus said if you are going to follow Him, you must deny yourself. This is the greatest stumbling block in the road to heaven.

Newcomer Wins Smashing Vote Over Chandler

By SY RAMSEY

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Ed-ward T. Breathitt Jr. may have sounded the last hurrah for former Gov. A. B. Happy Chandler by shattering his dreams of becoming Kentucky's only three-term governor.

The 38-year-old Hopkinsville attorney won a smashing victory over the seasoned 64-year-old politician in Tuesday's Democratic gubernatorial primary.

With 2,896 of 3,000 precincts reporting, Breathitt had 299,622 votes to 239,784 for Chandler. For the flamboyant Chandler, once a U.S. senator and national baseball commissioner, it signaled the twilight of a political career that spanned three decades.

Chandler won his first four-year term as governor in 1935 at age 37. Breathitt said that as a boy he helped put up election posters for Chandler, then his hero. Chandler's second term came in 1945.

Only once before has he been defeated. The late Alben Barkley turned the trick in the 1938 senatorial primary—helped by personal appearances of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Flashing a victory sign at his exuberant headquarters Tuesday night, Breathitt said, "I never felt we would lose it, though I knew we were bound at one state of the race."

A somber mood fell over Chandler's home at Versailles. The smile that earned him the nickname "Happy" was gone. "I'm going to bed and when I wake up I'll make a statement," he said.

Breathitt will face Louie Nunn of Glasgow, another 38-year-old attorney, in the November election. Nunn, winning over token opposition Tuesday, is counting on thousands of disaffected Democrats to help him become Kentucky's first Republican governor in 20 years.

The Democratic campaign was as furious and bitter as any John Breckinridge, an independent since the party's cleavage during the Civil War. Breathitt, embarking on a drive to heal the scars, called for unity immediately after his victory was apparent.

Breathitt's platform is much the same as that of Gov. Bert Combs, who lifted him from obscurity a year ago and picked him as likely successor: retention of the 3 per cent sales tax imposed in 1960, expansion of various state service-ment from the Air Force after more than 21 years service. He served as special assistant to the Comptroller. The medal was presented at a formal parade by men of Headquarters Squadron.

Chandler campaigned on a pledge to exempt food, medicine and clothing from the tax. He flared at what he called administrative scandals and reckless spending.

On television Breathitt was the soft-spoken, new image of progress for Kentucky. Around the courthouses he was as fiery and colorful as Chandler. He invaded the schools and courted the vote of high school seniors. Kentucky gave voting rights seven years ago to 18-year-olds.

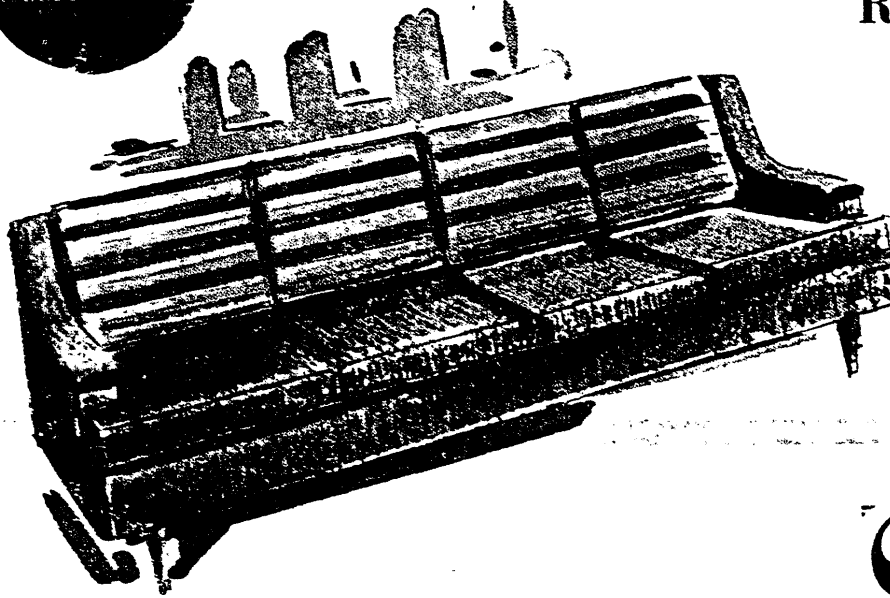

Breathitt, a former state representative, served in two appointed state posts under Combs.

In the lieutenant governor's race, Harry Lee Waterfield, allied with Chandler, defeated Amy Gen. John Breckinridge, an independent Democrat who feared a repeat of the Civil War. Breathitt, embarking on a drive to heal the scars, called for unity immediately after his victory was apparent.

Newcomer Wins Smashing Vote Over Chandler

By SY RAMSEY

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Ed night, Breathitt said: "I never felt we would lose it, though I knew we were being at one stage of the former Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler's race."

A somber mood fell over Chandler's home at Versailles. The smile that earned him the nickname Happy was gone.

The unheralded 38-year-old Hopkinsville attorney won a smashing victory over the seasoned 64-year-old politician in Tuesday's Democratic gubernatorial primary.

With 2,696 of 3,005 precincts reporting, Breathitt had 299,621 votes to 239,784 for Chandler.

For the flamboyant Chandler, once a U.S. senator and national baseball commissioner, it signaled the twilight of a political career that spanned three decades.

Chandler won his first four-year term as governor in 1955 at age 37. Breathitt said that as a boy he helped put up election posters for Chandler, then his hero. Chandler's second term came in 1955.

Only once before has he been defeated. The late Alben Barkley turned the trick in the 1938 senatorial primary—helped by personal appearances of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Flashing a victory sign at his expansion of various state service-ward T. Breathitt Jr. may have sounded the last hurrah for former Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

Chandler campaigned on a pledge to exempt food, medicine and clothing from the tax. He flailed at what he called administration scandals and reckless spending.

On television Breathitt was the soft-spoken "new image of progress" for Kentucky. Around the courthouses he was as folksy and colorful as Chandler. He invaded the schools and courted the vote of Glasgow, another 38-year-old high school seniors. Kentucky attorney, in the November election, Nunn, winning over token opposition Tuesday, is counting on thousands of disaffected Democrats to help him become Kentucky's first Republican governor in 20 years.

The Democratic campaign was as ferocious and bitter as any since the party's cleavage during the Civil War. Breathitt, embarking on a drive to heal the scars, called for unity immediately after his victory was apparent.

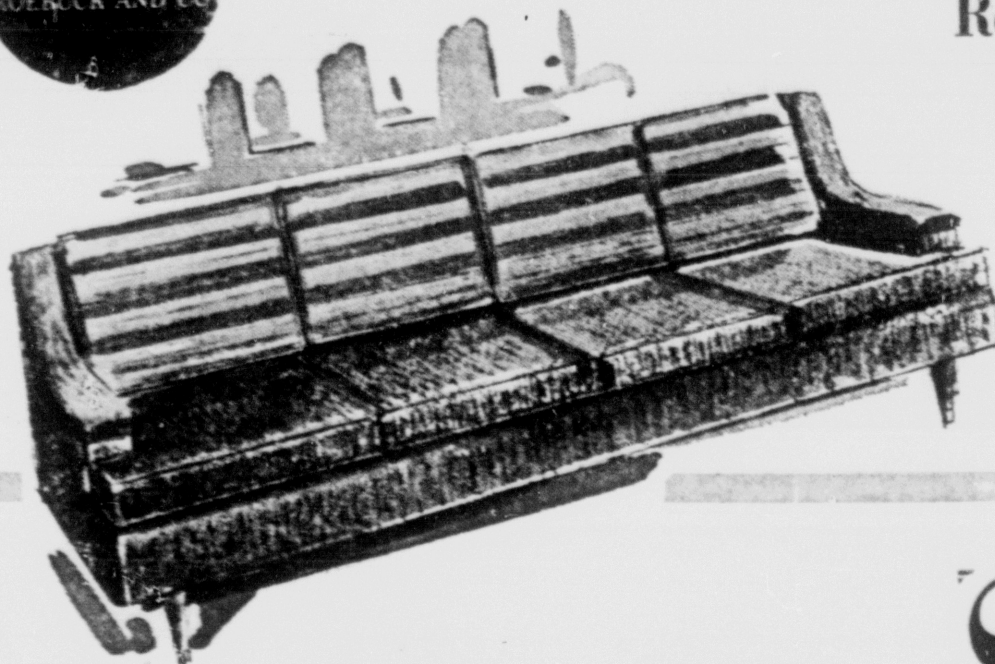

Breathitt's platform is much the same as that of Gov. Bert Combs, who lifted him from obscurity a year ago and picked him as likely successor: retention of the 3 per cent sales tax imposed in 1960.

The United States accounts for 37.1 per cent of the world's production of electricity. The Soviet Union is second with 13 per cent, followed by Britain at 5.8 per cent, Japan at 5.3 per cent and West Germany at 4.9 per cent.

Up in Smoke!

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column I noticed the rather vitriolic letter from "Doug" concerning his dislike of tobacco smoke. What amazed me was your approval of a device that would retaliate with an equally disgusting odor. On the basis of this, if the odor of garlic is offensive, why not use a logger's peavey to cram a couple of dozen buds down the throats of garlic eaters? And if you don't like the beehive hair-do, simply bust the wearer over the head with a hickory ax-handle. If you are annoyed because your linoleum is being pitted by ladies' steel heels, take a scythe and slash off their feet at the ankles. Heaven knows we all have to put up with a lot of things we don't especially like, but why not try to tolerate it with grace?

Smoke is bothersome, stay away from people who enjoy smoking. —BILL

DEAR BILL: You rattled the wrong cage. A bee-hive hair-do harms no one. One can step back a foot or two from another who has eaten garlic. And when you discover that your linoleum is being damaged, you can ask the lady to remove her shoes. "But" the air belongs to everyone. And no one has the right to pollute it from smoke but, sadly enough, the smoker is usually so enslaved by the habit that he neither asks nor cares whether he is offending the next person.

DEAR ABBY: In the absence of a "retaliator" for non-smokers, I'll tell you how I defend myself against the smoke thoughtless smokers send my way. I pick up a menu or newspaper and fan it back at them. If there is none handy—I simply "blow" it back to them. My wife tells me it is extremely rude, but it is no more rude than those who would choke me with their smoke. —ED R.F.

A meeting of the executive board was held May 24 at the home of Mrs. Carol Bowman for business concerning the future plans of the chapter and for appointments to all other offices for the coming year 1963-64.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Falling is the most common accident during spring cleaning, reports Philip Dykstra, director of home safety for the National Safety Council. He has some suggestions to make cleaning accident-free:

—Make sure your ladder is in good condition. Don't try to build a substitute from furniture or boxes. The ladder is long enough if you don't have to use the top rungs or step. Move the ladder rather than try to reach far to one side.

—Rinse floors clean of soap or detergent before applying wax. A thin, even coat of wax buffed to a high polish is harder and safer than a heavy coat.

—Paint only in well ventilated rooms. Use paint containing less than 1 per cent lead for all indoor use. Keep only or paint-soaked rags in tightly closed metal cans in a cool place.

—Do not use carbon tetrachloride or flammable liquids for cleaning.

—Avoid touching electrical appliances when your hands or floors are wet.

—Keep walking lanes open. Arrange storage spaces in an orderly and safe manner, with a place for everything.

—Don't try to carry heavy or bulky objects that obstruct your view or are too heavy.

—Use non-skid mats under rugs. If rugs are badly worn or torn, have them repaired or replaced.

—Keep pesticides, medicines and poisonous cleaning materials out of reach of children. Always keep such materials in their original containers. Get rid of old prescriptions and medicines in unmarked containers.

—Keep children and pets away when spraying insecticides. After spraying, wash all exposed parts of your body.

Financial Facts Aid Newlyweds

NEW YORK (UPI) — Newlyweds usually have coins that jingle, jangle—plus some folding money.

Rather than listening to the joyful sounds of coins and counting the other cash, the young marrieds are advised by experts to think about financial security—including the money they don't have.

Money, say the economists, does four jobs. First, it must provide funds for meeting day-to-day expenses. Second, it must provide a reserve fund of ready cash for emergency expenses or minor luxuries.

Third, it should cover an adequate insurance program. Fourth, it should include an investment program.

In figuring how much money you have, remember that it's not how much you earn, but how much you bring home after all deductions that counts.

After minimum housekeeping expenses are met, a savings account usually is the first step toward financial peace of mind.

Regular saving is indispensable, for it provides cash that can be reached in a hurry. Three months gross income is the minimum to keep on hand in a savings account; six months income is the maximum for the earnings offered.

In buying life insurance, remember that its function is to provide security if the family's major breadwinner should die or become incapacitated.

Adequate insurance coverage should amount to at least five years of the family's gross income.

Candy Cooler

Iced tea drinks become candy coolers when you use flavored candy sticks as swizzle sticks. They lend color, flavor and a slight sweetness. Rock candy also can be used as a sweetener. So can a lemon drop or a mint-flavor.

Garden Art

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — If you enjoy growing melons, remember that muskmelons and watermelons produce best on well-drained sandy soils. Cucumber beetles spread bacterial wilt that affects melons, says a University of Illinois horticulturist.

Opening lead: King of ♠
The hand presented today produced a variety of interesting results when it came up during the Open Pairs of the National Championship tournament held recently in St. Louis. The North-South pair, whose bidding sequence is presented above, achieved a tie for the best score on the deal.

South's opening one spade bid, West's double, and North's redouble were fairly standard procedure. So, for that matter, was East's rescue to two diamonds. If he passed the redouble partner was apt to run to another suit himself and, furthermore, there is no assurance that the one spade hand with great skill and succeed one table, one spade doubled became the final contract when North passed instead of redoubling and East elected to play for a penalty. Warned of the bad trump break, declarer handled the hand in fulfilling his bid with an extra trick.

To return to the table in question, East's bid of two diamonds was permitted to revert to North who doubled for penalties. South's hand possessed little defensive merit and he ran to two hearts. North was unwilling as yet to consign the deal to apart score, so he made a try for game by bidding two notrump. South's three club call at this point is well chosen, for it provides an accurate description of his distribution pinpointed by South's sequence. With the diamond void clear, bid can be defeated. In fact at yams. Serves 6.

Yummy Yams
Yams with currant sauce make an ideal accompaniment for sliced cold ham. Heat 2 1/2 pound cans of yams; drain. Blend 1 tablespoon of cornstarch with 1/4 cup of water in saucepan. Add 3/4 cup of currant jelly, 1-3 cup of current jelly, 1-3 cup of lemon juice and 1 cinnamon stick. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened and clear. Remove cinnamon stick. Pour over hot yams. Serves 6.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE
Dear Heloise:

When I boil eggs... after they are cooked I crack the shells all around and then let them stand in cold water for a few minutes. I find the eggs peel much easier. —Pat Merz

Dear Folks:
Here is a little experiment we have run on hard boiling eggs. Many people have written in to say: Never boil eggs, (that they should be slightly simmered) and never let them stand in the hot water after they have become hard-boiled as this toughens the white part of the egg.

I believe this is true. Here's why:
We took six eggs. Put three each in two different pans of cold water. We brought these to a boil and after the water came to a rolling boil we turned the fire down so that the eggs would just "simmer."

After the eggs were finished cooking we took one pan, put it in the sink and turned the cold water faucet on, letting the water run over the eggs for about five minutes. Eggs could be transferred to a pan of cold water and let stand.

The eggs that had been rapidly boiled and left in the hot water had tough whites and were more difficult to peel.
We peeled the three eggs from each pan. There is no doubt about it—the white part of the hard-boiled eggs which were immediately put under "cold" water were absolutely tender.

We also found out that if the eggs were well-cracked and held under the cold water faucet and peeled while still slightly warm that the shell removed beautifully without peeling part of the egg white off.

Another thing we found was that the shell nearly always stuck to a fresh egg, whereas with cold storage and older eggs this did not happen.
So, test this method yourself. Next time you boil two eggs put one in each pot and see what luck you come out with. I am sure you will be happy. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:
Clean sanitary mops can always be at our fingertips by having several detachable cloth heads so that one may be washed each week.
After washing and spinning them dry in your washing machine, lay all the cloth heads on a newspaper and sprinkle with a good polish. (I punch a hole in the cap of my furniture polish bottle with a nail.) I then roll them up tightly in the newspaper so as to distribute the oil among the cotton threads.
Later I hang them out-of-doors to dry "thoroughly." This leaves no oily streaks on my floors and picks up all the dust. —Portland

Dear Heloise:

Spicy
CHICAGO (UPI) — Herbs and spices can enhance the low-sodium diet, says University of Illinois nutritionist Harriet Barto.
Try allspice with ground meats, steaks, tomatoes and peaches. Use basil with eggs, fish, lamb, ground meats, liver, steaks and soups. A touch of dill makes fish, sauces, soups, salads taste better.
Ginger adds to the flavor of chicken and fruits. Try dry mustard with ground meats, salads and sauces, sage with meats, steaks and green beans. Savory, thyme and lemon also are versatile spices.
NEW YORK (UPI) — Two new brownie mix flavors are available — mint fudge and butterscotch. Each 1 pound mix makes 3 dozen 1 1/2-inch cookies, by adding an egg and nuts. (Betty Crocker)

Atomic Fusion, Power Fuel Of the Future

need in this country and the need of the world for ever-increasing supplies of energy both in the near future and in the centuries to come, particularly in the face of the rapid population "explosion."

Inroads upon the world's supply of fossil fuels — coal, oil and gas — will be increasingly heavy in the next few decades. In a recent report to the President on civilian nuclear power, the Atomic Energy Commission said:

"Next to the land, the water and the air, without which we could not exist at all, energy is by far the most important of our terrestrial resources. Without it our industrial society would be impossible. In common with the other three, it has substitutes."

"Today's society depends almost entirely upon energy originating in the sun. The vast bulk of this has been stored during hundreds of millions of years in the form of fossil hydrocarbons, such as coal and oil."

Although the supply is vast, we are consuming these materials at such a rapidly increasing rate that, if not supplemented, they will begin to approach exhaustion within the span of a few generations."

"If no supplementary forms of energy were utilized, we would exhaust our ready available, low-cost supplies of fossil fuels in from 75 to 100 years and our presently visualized total supplies in 150 to 200 years."

Long before the point of exhaustion, we would be obliged to taper off their use, perhaps within the life span of persons now alive."

Uranium — and the fissioning process by which nuclear energy can be obtained from splitting the nuclei of this heavy nuclear fuel — has stepped into the breach as a means for extending and supplementing our supplies of fuel."

But the fissionable material found in nature is confined to a form of uranium, called U-235, which makes up only about 7-10 of 1 per cent of natural uranium. If this were our only potential source of energy, this contribution to our total energy reserves would scarcely be worth the cost of development."

But a process called "breeding" is now under development. Breeding is a method by which more fissionable material is produced in a fission reactor than is used in the fissioning process."

If breeding is successful it would make all natural uranium ores, including low-grade ores, and another potential fuel, called thorium available for the fission process instead of only the scarce uranium form U-235."

At the same time, however, fusion offers still another possibility for insuring tremendous future world supplies of energy. The reason is that the main source of supply of nuclear fuel for the fusion process is the ocean's almost limitless supply of water."

Water contains both ordinary hydrogen atoms and atoms of the heavier type of hydrogen known as deuterium — one of the principal fusion fuels."

Hence, in looking ahead, fusion, with its use of the virtually inexhaustible supply of deuterium from the oceans, could meet the world's energy requirements for millions of years. Scientists have determined that the energy from the deuterium nuclei present in one gallon of water would equal the energy which could be produced by burning 300 gallons of gasoline."

Fusion, moreover, has one striking advantage over fission as a means of producing power. Fusion produces no appreciable amount of radioactive by-products, as fission does."

Although nuclear physicists and engineers have learned how to contain these fission by-products safely during the energy-producing process and how to store them safely, the ultimate use or disposal of large quantities of highly radioactive waste is recognized as a problem of increasing magnitude which eventually must be solved."

With fusion, there are no large amounts of waste to store, although a fusion reactor, as does a fission reactor, would have to be heavily shielded to prevent the escape of neutrons and various harmful radiations."

Both fission and fusion are expected to play important roles in meeting energy requirements when fusion power actually is attained and thus—whether from fission or fusion—the world has received two vital reassurances."

The first is that present supplies of fossil fuels can be conserved for a long time to come, particularly for the many specialized uses for which they are uniquely suited and for the many non-fuel products which can be obtained from them."

The second is that neither now nor in any foreseeable future is mankind likely to run out of plentiful supplies of heat and power."

Atomic Fusion, Power Fuel
Of the Future

need in this country and the need of the world for ever-increasing supplies of energy both in the near future and in the centuries to come, particularly in the face of the rapid population "explosion."

Inroads upon the world's supply of fossil fuels — coal, oil and gas — will be increasingly heavy in the next few decades. In a recent report to the President on civilian nuclear power, the Atomic Energy Commission said:

"Next to the land, the water and the air, without which we could not exist at all, energy is by far the most important of our terrestrial resources. Without it our industrial society would be impossible. In common with the other three, it has substitute.

"Today's society depends almost entirely upon energy originating in the sun. The vast bulk of this has been stored during hundreds of millions of years in the form of fossil hydrocarbons, such as coal and oil.

Altho the supply is vast, we are consuming these materials at such a rapidly increasing rate that, if not supplemented, they will begin to approach exhaustion within the span of a few generations.

"If no supplementary forms of energy were utilized, we would exhaust our readily available, low-cost supplies of fossil fuels in from 75 to 100 years and our presently visualized total supplies in 150 to 200 years.

Long before the point of exhaustion, we would be obliged to taper off their use... perhaps within the life span of persons now alive."

Uranium — and the fissioning process by which nuclear energy can be obtained from splitting the nuclei of this heavy nuclear fuel — has stepped into the breach as a means for extending and supplementing our supplies of fuel.

But the fissionable material found in nature is confined to a form of uranium called U-235, which makes up only about 7-10 of 1 per cent of natural uranium.
If this were our only potential source of energy, this contribution to our total energy reserves would scarcely be worth the cost of development.

But a process called "breeding" is now under development. Breeding is a method by which more new fissionable material is produced in a fission reactor than is used in the fissioning process.

If breeding is successful it would make all natural uranium ores, including low-grade ores, and another potential fuel called thorium available for the fission process instead of only the scarce uranium form, U-235.

At the same time, however, fusion offers still another possibility for insuring tremendous future world supplies of energy.

The reason is that the main source of supply of nuclear fuel for the fusion process is the ocean's almost limitless supply of water.

Water contains both ordinary hydrogen atoms and atoms of the heavier type of hydrogen known as deuterium — one of the principal fusion fuels.

Hence, in looking ahead, fusion, with its use of the virtually inexhaustible supply of deuterium from the oceans, could meet the world's energy requirements for millions of years! Scientists have determined that the energy from the deuterium nuclei present in one gallon of water would equal the energy which could be produced by burning 300 gallons of gasoline.

Fusion, moreover, has one striking advantage over fission as a means of producing power. Fusion produces no appreciable amount of radioactive by-products, as fission does.

Altho nuclear physicists and engineers have learned how to contain these fission by-products safely during the energy-producing process and how to store them safely, the ultimate use or disposal of large quantities of highly radioactive waste is recognized as a problem of increasing magnitude which eventually must be solved.

Alarming Number Killed In Accidents in Year

By ALICIA HART
CLEVELAND, Ohio (NEA) — Whatever else 1962 may have been, it was not a vintage year for safety.

An alarming total of 96,500 Americans died in accidents — more than in any year since 1952. In traffic alone the death toll zoomed to 41,000 — an all-time high.

Forty of the 50 states had to report that their 1962 highway deaths exceeded those of the year before. City after city turned in the same discouraging news.

But in Cleveland the story was different. Here is what Cleveland reported for 1962.

The city cut its traffic death toll by 22 per cent from the year before to reach an all-time low, and to achieve the lowest death rate of any city its size in the country.

Cuyahoga County, of which Cleveland is the core, experienced the lowest traffic death toll it has achieved since 1955.

The city and county together compiled the lowest traffic death toll since 1937.

The city and county cut deaths from fires and accidents of all kinds from 60 in 1961 to 565 in 1962 for the lowest toll since 1955. Add the most recent national figures for 1963 show Cleveland still leads all cities of its size in traffic safety.

How and why did all this happen in Greater Cleveland?

The people of Greater Cleveland are sure it wasn't luck. They believe it was due to an all-out, year-long safety campaign the like of which had never been seen before.

This campaign, called Blueprint for Life, was conducted on behalf of the entire community by the Greater Cleveland Safety Council, a nonprofit citizen organization which wages ceaseless war on fires and accidents.

The Blueprint strategy was simple: go to the people with a dramatic presentation of the accident problem, enlist as many men, women and children in the campaign as humanly possible, give them something specific to do and see that they do it.

In a community of almost 2 million this meant:

Enlisting all elements of the community life, regardless of age, race, sex or creed.

Obtaining active participation of schools, churches, public officials, local safety organizations, civic clubs, business, industry, women's groups, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls, Catholic Youth organizations, Golden Age clubs, housing and recreation centers, boat and yacht clubs, the United States Coast Guard, the American Red Cross and health and medical groups.

Helping industry not only to step up its efforts to prevent accidents on the job, but to persuade employees to be safety-minded around the clock and to ask their families and friends to do likewise.

Urging housewives to invite their neighbors to informal coffeeklatches for discussion of neighborhood accidents, accident hazards, and methods of preventing the accidents and eliminating the hazards. Kits of material were provided, and as many as 100 klatches were held simultaneously.

All this required dedicated leadership, a considerable amount of money, and scads of hard work.

The leadership was provided by volunteers so dissimilar in vocation and background as nationally known television star Raymond Burr, Dr. Samuel R. Gerber, the county coroner who served as general chairman, a department store executive, a federal judge, a hotel executive, an industrial safety authority, and the staff administrator of the Safety Council.

The operating money — $80,000 — came from the county government, two local foundations, and local business and industry.

This cash was in addition to more than $200,000 allocated by the United States Public Health Service to produce seven new safety films used first in the Blueprint campaign and then made available to the entire country, and to provide personnel and special services, including a two-year study of 60,000 accident cases.

The workload was borne by a small but hard-hitting staff headed by Paul Jones, who was brought to Cleveland to administer the campaign after 23 years as director of public information for the National Safety Council.

Blueprint, of course, does not claim that it saved a single one of the 45 lives saved in the campaign year of September 1961 to September 1962. Neither can it be sure it was in any way responsible for the fact that 121 lives were saved in Greater Cleveland in the two years during which the campaign was organized and conducted.

But Blueprint's sponsors, public officials and countless others regard it as significant that Blueprint was the only major ingredient added to the safety picture in Greater Cleveland during the period in which the 121 lives were saved.

They are gratified that at the end of the first three months of 1963 — six months after the Blueprint campaign ended — Cleveland still had the lowest traffic death rate of any city its size in the incident.

Then she remembered a Blueprint film on home fires she had seen in school. This film emphasized that people trapped by fire should never open a door if the door felt hot, since flames would be on the other side. The girl felt the door. It was hot. She restrained the frightened children in the bedroom and the firemen who took them to the fire station. The firemen came safety down that ladder.

Alarming Number Killed In Accidents in Year

By ALICIA HART
CLEVELAND, Ohio (NEA) — Whatever else 1962 may have been, it was not a vintage year for safety.

An alarming total of 96,500 Americans died in accidents — more than in any year since 1952. In traffic alone the death toll zoomed to 41,000 — an all-time high.

Forty of the 50 states had to report that their 1962 highway deaths exceeded those of the year before. City after city turned in the same discouraging news.

But in Cleveland the story was different. Here is what Cleveland reported for 1962:

The city cut its traffic death toll by 22 per cent from the year before to reach an all-time low, and to achieve the lowest death rate of any city its size in the country.

Cuyahoga County, of which Cleveland is the core, experienced the lowest traffic death toll it has achieved since 1955.

The city and county together compiled the lowest traffic death toll since 1937.

The city and county cut deaths from fires and accidents of all kinds from 60 in 1961 to 565 in 1962 for the lowest toll since 1955.

And the most recent national figures for 1963 show Cleveland still leads all cities of its size in traffic safety.

How and why did all this happen in Greater Cleveland?

The people of Greater Cleveland are sure it wasn't luck. They believe it was due to an all-out, year-long safety campaign the like of which had never been seen before.

This campaign, called Blueprint for Life, was conducted on behalf of the entire community by the Greater Cleveland Safety Council, a nonprofit citizen organization which wages ceaseless war on fires and accidents.

The Blueprint strategy was simple: go to the people with a dramatic presentation of the accident problem, enlist as many men, women and children in the campaign as humanly possible, give them something specific to do and see that they do it.

In a community of almost 2 million this meant:

Enlisting all elements of the community life, regardless of age, race, sex or creed.

Obtaining active participation of schools, churches, public officials, local safety organizations, civic clubs, business, industry, women's groups, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls, Catholic Youth organizations, Golden Age clubs, housing and recreation centers, boat and yacht clubs, the United States Coast Guard, the American Red Cross and health and medical groups.

Helping industry not only to step up its efforts to prevent accidents on the job, but to persuade employees to be safety-minded around the clock and to ask their families and friends to do likewise.

Urging housewives to invite their neighbors to informal coffeeklatches for discussion of neighborhood accidents, accident hazards, and methods of preventing the accidents and eliminating the hazards. Kits of material were provided, and as many as 100 klatches were held simultaneously.

All this required dedicated leadership, a considerable amount of money, and scads of hard work.

The leadership was provided by volunteers so dissimilar in vocation and background as nationally known television star Raymond Burr, Dr. Samuel R. Gerber, the county coroner who served as general chairman, a department store executive, a federal judge, a hotel executive, an industrial safety authority, and the staff administrator of the Safety Council.

The operating money — $80,000 — came from the county government, two local foundations, and local business and industry.

This cash was in addition to more than $200,000 allocated by the United States Public Health Service to produce seven new safety films (used first in the Blueprint campaign and then made available to the entire country) and to provide personnel and special services, including a two-year study of 60,000 accident cases.

The workload was borne by a small but hard-hitting staff headed by Paul Jones, who was brought to Cleveland to administer the campaign after 23 years as director of public information for the National Safety Council.

Blueprint, of course, does not claim that it saved a single one of the 45 lives saved in the campaign year of September 1961 to September 1962. Neither can it be sure it was in any way responsible for the fact that 121 lives were saved in Greater Cleveland in the two years during which the campaign was organized and conducted.

But Blueprint's sponsors, public officials and countless others regard it as significant that Blueprint was the only major ingredient added to the safety picture in Greater Cleveland during the period in which the 121 lives were saved.

They are gratified that at the end of the first three months of 1963—six months after the Blueprint campaign ended—Cleveland still had the lowest traffic death rate of any city its size in the country.

The Blueprint campaign will be a major and permanent part of home in nearby Painesville. Four of the Safety Council's regular activities in the future. Cleveland believes the improved safety climate it created will save hundreds of lives in the years to come.

This belief is heightened by an incident. In the early hours of last Christmas morning a fire broke out in a major and permanent part of home in nearby Painesville. Four of the Safety Council's regular activities in the future. Cleveland believes the improved safety climate it created will save hundreds of lives in the years to come.

The girl felt the door. It was hot. She restrained the frightened children in the bedroom and the firemen who took them to safety down that ladder.

Amplifier Said Cause of Space Capsule Trouble

By HOWARD BENEDICT

DUBLIN — Thieves recently raided the home aviary of an Irish gentleman who was away receiving a bird society award. They stole his prize budgerigar failures which forced astronaut Gordon Cooper to steer his spacecraft manually back to earth.

Moisture, perhaps from Cooper's perspiring, corroded a connection on the small electronic box called an Amp Cal—for amplifier calibration—and wiped out all spacecraft automatic controls down to a certain re-entry point.

An electrical short in an Amp Cal solder connection, probably because of faulty insulation, knocked out the remainder of the automatic re-entry controls and left Cooper on his own with the manual system.

These results of exhaustive tests were reported Monday night by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The Amp Cal is designed to change electrical signals received from various spacecraft sensors, such as gyroscopes and infrared horizon scanners, into firing commands which ignite small jets in the capsule's automatic system.

The streams of hydrogen peroxide gas shooting from the jets maintain the spacecraft's proper position and angle in relation to the earth.

As Cooper whirled on the 19th of his 22 orbits two weeks ago, a green light labeled 05g suddenly flashed on and indicated erroneously that he might be re-entering the atmosphere early. Then two inverters which transform alternating to direct current to support certain automatic functions did not work.

Sentences Are Upheld in Uranium Deals

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The James D. Seagins of San Antonio prison sentences and fines of uranium promoter John Milton Addison and five of his associates have been upheld by the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals.

Addison was sentenced to 15 years in prison and fined $30,000 in U.S. District Court in Dallas in 1961. He and his associates were convicted of mail fraud and conspiracy in the promotion of a device they called a "uranium upgrader."

"The federal government said the uranium upgrader was nothing more than a gravel washer," Miles A. White of Denver was sentenced to seven years in prison and fined $20,000. William C. Groom and Robert C. Olson of explore the area. He established a Denver and John R. Metz trading post.

FRIENDLY FUSS? PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Two U.S. marshals seized 10 filing cabinets, subject, but they both knew a 48-year-old man was treated at Rhode Island Hospital after the seizure of the cabinets. Boom and Bust Town Found In Michigan

SALGATUCK, Mich. (UPI)—In 1834 construction began at the bend of the Kalamazoo River on a sawmill to wrest the rich pine forest from the land to help rebuild Chicago after the great fire. It was Singapore, Mich., a community that, in its heyday, prospered to rival the richest city in the Midwest.

Fifty years later, the streets were grown over with scrubbery and oaks creaked in the winds of Lake Michigan. Singapore was a ghost town. Today only a plaque remains to mark the once-booming community.

Although Singapore was the most famous, it was just one of many ghost towns that sprang up in the wake of Michigan's logging boom and bust economy.

Logging and lumbering, steeped in the rich history of the state, carried by the lakes have covered many a memory of days of promise and struggle in the state.

Other names that ring through the history books are Kensington and Ora de Labrador. Kensington was between Huron and Air.

After the Civil War, the logging boom was on its way out. In 1838, when the first logging boom was in its heyday, a logging boom was on its way out.

Ora de Labrador was founded in 1837 between Bay City and P. Huron, an attempt to establish a religious settlement. The logging boom was on its way out.

But few if any of the ghost towns can claim Singapore for its heyday. The first logging boom was on its way out.

BEAUTY AND BRAINS—Ruthy endowed with talent, beauty and intelligence, the actress is adding to her reputation with each film she makes. She has demonstrated her versatility in the widely differing roles she played in "A Light in the Piazza" and "Diamond Head."

Boom and Bust Town Found In Michigan

SAUGATUCK, Mich. (UPI)—In 1834 construction began at the bend of the Kalamazoo River on a sawmill to wrest the rich pine forest from the land to help rebuild Chicago after the great fire. It was Singapore, Mich., a community that in its heyday promised to rival the richest city in the Midwest.

Fifty years later, the streets were grown over with shrubbery and open doors clacked in the winds off Lake Michigan. Singapore was a ghost town. Today only a plaque remains to mark the once-booming community.

Although Singapore was the most famous, it was just one of many ghost towns that sprinkle the pages of Michigan history.

Boom and bust economy, creeping forests and relentless sand carried by the lakes have covered many a memory of days of promised grandeur in the state.

Other names that ring through the history pages are Kensington and Ora et Labora. Kensington was between Brighton and Ann Arbor in the southeastern part of the state. Its doom was sealed in 1838 when the notoriety from a bank scandal resulted in a boycott of the town.

Ora et Labora was founded in 1847 between Bay City and Port Huron, an attempt to establish a religious, socialistic-type ideal community. A party of 280 German settlers based their settlement on "prayer and work." But the settlement disappeared shortly after the Civil War.

But few, if any, of the ghost towns can match Singapore for momentary brilliance. The first settlement arrived in 1834 and the New York and Michigan Co. promised to build a sawmill to bring additional residents to the area.

In 1837, the company made good its promise and the sawmill was built at a total cost of nearly $100,000. The Astor House, then considered the finest hotel in the state was built shortly after the mill and its dining room served as a dance hall for the entertainment-starved workers.

A bank followed in 1838 and it issued money to pay the mill hands. The script was taken in at company stores but it was not much good beyond 10 miles of the city limits.

Law required a certain amount of specie be kept on hand to back the money but hard-pressed bankers found a way around such rules. They arranged that the necessary amount of specie be available at some centrally located point so it could be picked up by the about-to-be-inspected bank.

When the examiner would finish with one bank, the species was sent by speedy messenger to the next bank down the line. At one point, legend tells, an Indian messenger dropped the species from his canoe when he was headed from Singapore from New Richmond.

After the word was passed down the line, New Richmond fought a delaying action by opening its doors of hospitality to the non-plussed examiner. After a feast and entertainment he left for Singapore but the money was there when he arrived.

It had been recovered from the river with blacksmith tongs.

Singapore progressed and at its peak boasted three sawmills, two hotels and several general stores along with the bank. But the pine stands became exhausted, sealing the town's doom. By 1895, most of the people had gone.

Bulgaria's Reds Order Destruction of Dogs

By LEON DENNEN
NEW YORK (NEA) — Red-bureaucrats behind the Iron Curtain seem to have exhausted the roster of American capitalists and Western imperialists and are now turning on the dog as an enemy of the "good Communist life." Communist Bulgaria's regime is currently carrying on a relentless campaign to exterminate of man's age-long silent friend on tensibly because dogs "spread infectious diseases among humans and animals." Law No. 26 issued recently by the no less august body than the Council of Ministers of the "People's Democracy" strictly forbids the feeding or even the possession of dogs by "unauthorized citizens." This, alas, is not another bit of capitalist propaganda against communism. It is a brutal fact printed in Dunavsko Delo, an official newspaper of the Bulgarian Communist Party.

The Red oligarchs, who are as devoid of a sense of justice as they are of a sense of humor, insist that they only have the "good of the people" at heart. They claim that the decree to exterminate dogs was issued "in order to protect the welfare of the workers, prevent infectious diseases in livestock breeding and to improve the general health of the country."

Fortunately, even behind the Iron Curtain where food is scarce and the secret police ever present there are humans whose love of dogs is stronger than their fear. Ordinary Bulgarian citizens, it seems, refuse to part with their silent friends even though they face stiff fines for violating Law No. 26.

This has aroused the ire of the editors of Dunavski Delo who wrote in an angry editorial: "The decree of the Council of Ministers was broadcast over the radio. Dates were fixed for the destruction of dogs. But the number of citizens who turned up was very small. The attention of all dog owners is drawn to the fact that the decree will continue in force until it has been fully complied with."

"Let this decree be kept in mind. The next time dates are set for the destruction of dogs let all owners bring them to places specified. Should they fail to do so they will be fined and their dogs will be destroyed anyway—but in a compulsory manner."

To date, according to the Red newspaper, 18 persons have already been fined.

Of course, to use Orwell's famous phrase, while all dogs are equal in Communist society, some dogs are more equal than others. Thus Law No. 26 states clearly that "Only the offices of the Ministry of National Defense and of the Ministry of Interior (Police) are allowed to have dogs." These are ostensibly the lucky dogs. "But all other dogs are subject to destruction."

Dog lovers in the Free World who are doomed to live under "capitalist barbarism" will undoubtedly be horrified by this senseless destruction of animals. Perhaps they will find some solace in the fact that the dog, as an enemy of socialism, has now joined the company of American imperialists, revisionist poets and abstract painters.

Plenty of Sugar To Drop Prices, Officials Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Agriculture said today its assurances that the United States has plenty of sugar available has helped bring down domestic sugar prices.

Under Secretary Charles S. Murphy in a letter to Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan, D-Mo., chairman of the House subcommittee on consumer affairs, repeated these assurances and added:

"Since this fact became known Friday morning, it is reasonable to believe that it was a major factor in bringing about the price decline on Friday and Monday which resulted in the domestic stock price falling in those two days by $1.40 per 100 pounds."

Mrs. Sullivan's subcommittee is investigating the sharp advances in sugar prices. Murphy said supplies already furnished this country and those yet to be supplied under a quota system administered by the department total 10,287,000 tons, or more than 500,000 tons in excess of the record supply provided last year.

The letter said there are indications of considerable stockpiling and possibly hoarding in this country because of price advances and a tight world supply situation. Murphy said wholesalers, retailers and industrial users apparently had about one million tons on hand at the end of April compared with around 400,000 tons a year ago.

Art Association Memorial for 100 Atlantans

ATLANTA (AP) — Nearly a year has passed since more than 100 members of the Atlanta Art Association died in the fire crash of a chartered jet in France.

During that year, friends and lovers of art paid the victims a superb tribute — they breathed new life into the art association.

"If there had been no crash we would not have had the impetus to push forward," said James J. Armistead, president of the association.

Instead, it kicked off an activity that went beyond the crash and would make Atlanta an art center for the whole Southeast.

"Many art members who perished in the crash were present at a meeting several months before their trip in which we voted to revamp the entire art center," the president said.

"Some of the activity included a complete reorganization of the art school, blueprints for a new school as well as plans for putting the entire art center on a businesslike professional basis rather than the old and miss procedure it was," he added.

"For example, the first thing we did was change the association's by-laws, investing power in the president and abolishing the chairman of the board's job."

"The president, in turn, was given authority to appoint a director, and we appointed an excellent man, Dr. W. B. Bryan, formerly of the Minneapolis School of Art."

"We have also hired a new director, Edmund Vogel, of the National Museum in Washington who knows us so well."

"Then, we've started building up the staff of the art school and we're offering academic courses to supplement work toward an accredited degree. The old Atlanta Art Institute offered a degree, but it wasn't accredited."

"Armistead, who is also president of Scripps, said the old art school is inadequate, meagerly housed and a serious fire hazard. "Our fund raising drive for a new school has been quite successful."

He listed the improved handling of funds as another vital change. All money, whether from gifts or projects, is turned over to the treasury and the board of trustees dispenses all funds.

Bryan said proof of how far the association has come in the past year was the Louvre's recent loan of their masterpieces, Whistler's Mother and The Penitent St. Magdalene. "They would not have been lent if we were not top-flight," he added.

"A tremendous interest was generated by their offer. It was a human interest story and people responded throughout the Southeast."

"Another result is the promise of the French government to offer more paintings as loans to American museums — Atlanta will doubtless be included."

Bryan said artists throughout the country had sent paintings to the Atlanta Museum in commemoration of the plane victims. "For various reasons, we can't always accept gift paintings, but people have been generous and thoughtful in offering them," Bryan said.

Commented Mayor Ivan Allen: "A big city moves on. There are manifold indications of a deep sympathy in our loss. There was the added respect and definite demonstration through the Louvre paintings as well as a renewed interest in the Atlanta Art Association and its work."

It adds up to a deep expression of sympathy for those who were lost and who must be replaced by a continuing forward motion in the art association."

School Financing to Be Studied in Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gov. George D. Clyde said today he would appoint a special, nine-member citizens' committee to study the controversial problem of school financing.

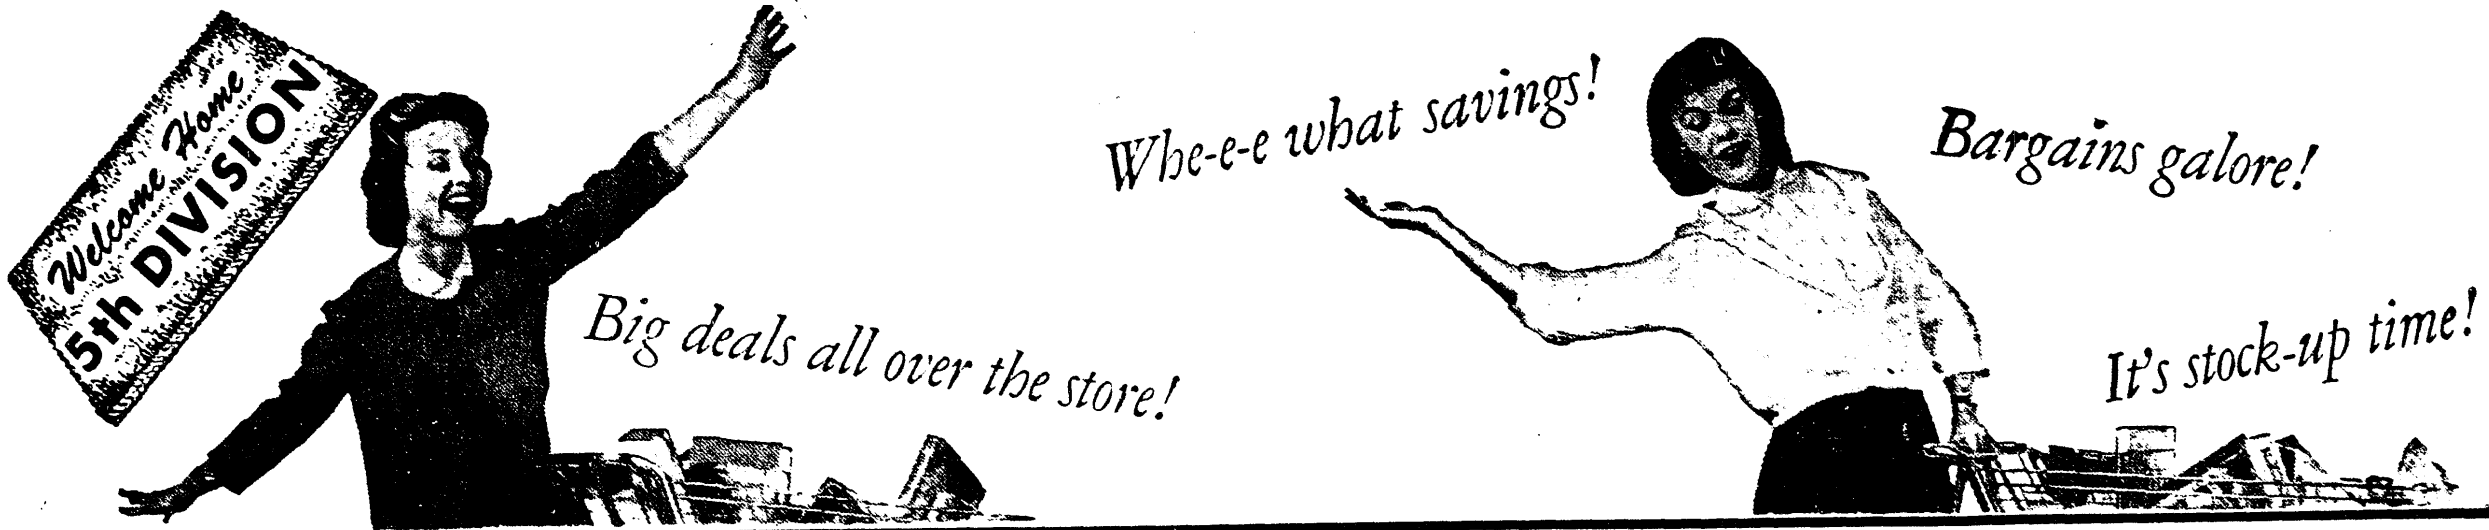

The governor said if the committee's recommendations warrant, he would call a special session of the legislature next year to consider the school problem.

Clyde's action was hailed by John C. Evans, executive secretary of the Utah Education Association, as "A very important statement, one that might affect in a very vital way the educational processes in our state."

He declined further comment. There was hope the governor's action would be accepted as a compromise solution to the impasse that has threatened to close the state's public schools next fall.

The state's teachers, dissatisfied with the amount of money appropriated for schools by the last legislature, have threatened to refuse to sign new contracts unless more money is provided.

The governor has steadfastly refused to place the subject of school financing on the agenda of the special legislative session which convenes tomorrow to consider a state building program.

How to Keep Well

By DR. T. E. VAN DELLEN
 (© 1963, by the Chicago Tribune)

To the limit of medical science, the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal habits will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual ailments.

JIMSON WEED POISONING

Two children were poisoned after eating the seeds of the Jimson weed. One was a boy of 3 who became markedly confused and disoriented. He came into the house reeling like a drunk and then had convulsions. His sister, aged 6, exhibited the same symptoms except for convulsions. There is no specific remedy for this condition, which resembles belladonna poisoning. This means prevention is imperative and we wonder why so common a plant is not eradicated completely. Jimson weed, an annual, grows in most parts of the United States. It is dubbed stinkweed or thorn apple and has been a problem for decades.

The poisoning is called milk sickness because many people encounter symptoms after drinking milk that comes from sick cows. The animal eats the Jimson weed and develops the trembles. Some of the poison gets into the milk and anyone who drinks this liquid is likely to become ill.

In the past, farmers often peddled their own milk and left a trail of milk sickness along the route. Many of the cases were fatal. Nancy Hanks Lincoln was the most celebrated; she died of milk sickness when Abe was a small boy. The disease is not common today because most of us buy from large dairies. The milk is poured into vats and any that might be contaminated is so diluted as to be safe.

Learn to recognize this plant and destroy it immediately. It is found not only in pastures but in back yards, playgrounds, and public parks. Little children will eat anything in sight and weed poisoning must be considered whenever a youngster develops a sudden baffling illness. There are more than 50 varieties of weeds and other plants in the United States that are risky or poisonous when squeezed or swallowed.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Tomorrow: Chemical agents for leukemia.

Moon Life

J. A. Z. writes: Do you think that when the astronauts reach the moon and return to earth, they will bring new types of germs back with them?

Reply

Your guess is as good as mine. We are told no one lives on the moon and this might include all germs. On the other hand, we might find an advanced civilization and our astronauts may return with medicines that control all diseases.

ARTERY HARDENING

V. P. writes: Does arteriosclerosis start in one artery or various arteries?

Reply

It has to start somewhere and we can assume that a small patch forms along the lining of one blood vessel. Arteriosclerosis may be limited to one passageway and when the disease is generalized, one artery is worse than others.

F. L. writes: Does pus in the urine mean kidney or bladder disease?

Reply

Pus means that inflammation exists somewhere along the urinary tract. It is likely to be in the kidneys if pain is noted in the back, the bladder or urethra when associated with burning or frequency of urination. Different tests can be done to pinpoint the source.

Damaged Brain

D. M. writes: What are the symptoms of concussion of the brain?

Reply

Unconsciousness for a few seconds to years. Coma may be preceded by dizziness or "seeing stars" and followed by vomiting, confusion, inability to concentrate, loss of memory, and headache.

One Million Political Prisoners Still Reported

By TOM A. CULLEN

LONDON (NEA) — Of the world's forgotten men none are more forgotten than political prisoners.

The head of a group devoted to easing their plight estimates that more than one million now languish behind walls and barbed wire on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

Peter Benenson, a lawyer, is director of Amnesty International. The nonpolitical group, which maintains its headquarters in London, seeks the eventual freeing of all such captives around the world.

For the time being, however, Amnesty contents itself with isolated triumphs, such as securing the release of Ukrainian Archbishop Josyf Slipyi who had spent 18 years in a Siberian prison camp before he was released early this year.

Last December the archbishop was released from prison, and none were more surprised than Vatican officials when he turned up in Rome.

Not only in Soviet forced labor camps, but among prisoners of conscience everywhere is Amnesty looked upon as a friend. It is asking all governments to agree to a minimum code of conduct in handling such prisoners.

Specifically, governments are asked to guarantee a fair trial, that prisoners will not be held longer than seven years, nor subjected to physical violence, forced labor or cruel punishment.

Julian Grimau, the recently executed Spanish Communist, would have been saved from the firing squad had not the Communists intervened on a world scale to make a political issue out of his recent trial in Spain, is the opinion of Benenson.

"I am certain that if the Communists had not intervened so massively in the Grimau case that the death sentence would have been commuted," Benenson told me. "As it was, General Franco could not back down after Khrushchev made an issue of the case."

Amnesty was started in May 1961, as an outcome of Benenson's wartime experience in rescuing children from Nazi-occupied Central Europe. Today it has some 238 groups functioning, mostly in European countries.

Each group agrees to "adopt" three prisoners, one from behind the Iron Curtain, one from a Western country, and one from a piece, in which Amnesty was non-aligned country. In addition to denning in headlines as "this working to free these prisoners or damnable neo-colonialist organization to mitigate their sentences, the tion" Amnesty had protested to group does what it can to help Nkrumah against the death sentence. Colorado Gets $10 Million Less In Income Tax

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP) — Colorado is getting nearly $10 million less from its state income tax than it did during the last fiscal year.

This means governmental belt-tightening, both Gov. John Love and Revenue Director Hugh Weed Jr. indicate. They say appropriations can be met.

Weed said net income tax collections since last July 1 total $2,957,100, compared with $72,612,655 for the comparable period during the 1961-62 fiscal year.

Mostly, the result is due to the 15 per cent cut in taxes on 1962 personal earnings and the roughly similar cut on 1963 earnings. Also, Weed says, it apparently reflects expectations of drought in rural areas.

Weed announced the figures late Monday. At the same time he disclosed that the state paid out $17,222,408 in refunds to 456,266 Coloradans. The amount refunded more than doubles the $8,648,457 given back during the 1961-62 fiscal year.

Weed said the tax cuts reflect in the figures in two ways—refunds are higher because of them and money received with estimates of 1963 taxes is smaller.

Second quarter payments on 1963 estimates are due June 15, before the end of the fiscal year. The revenue chief reported the figures include all receipts paid before the April 15 income tax filing deadline. The processing, he said, was completed at least 10 days earlier than ever before. He credited the data processing unit with speeding up the handling of returns.

Gov. Love, commenting on the figures at a news conference, said, "It looks like we're going to miss some of the estimates." "It is my belief we won't be in any trouble on expenditures," he replied in answer to another question.

"I don't see any cause for alarm," Weed said. "It means we are operating on a basis where there is not a large amount of fat. I think that is a desirable basis on which to operate. It is the business of a government to create surpluses."

Echoing a view expressed several weeks ago, Weed said he is certain receipts are large enough to meet appropriations.

Four Way Stop Sign Did Not Help, Either

CALIFORNIA AND IOWA retained the lead in total cash receipts from farm marketings in 1962. They were first and second for the 15th consecutive year.

EFFINGHAM, Ill. (AP) — Robert Dirks, commissioner of health and safety in Effingham, had a four-way stop sign installed at the intersection of U.S. Highway 40 and Willow Avenue last week as a safety measure.

A motorist ran through it Tuesday. His car struck Dirks' auto, causing $100 damage. Dirks was not hurt.

Biggest Idea Bonus Amounts to $9,495

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wil Williams, 47, a mechanic, won the biggest idea bonus in the company's history for a contribution to the suggestion box that saved the United almost $100,000 during its first year of application, a company spokesman said Tuesday.

The former Shelbyville, Tenn., farm boy was given $9,495 for devising a method to repair hydraulic system pump components which in the past had to be thrown away.

Five earlier suggestions netted $1,000 each.

Soviets Send Rockets On 7,500-Mile Flight

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union, in tests designed to boost its manned space program, has fired rockets nearly 7,500 miles into the central Pacific Ocean, Tass said today.

The Soviet news agency said the final stages of the rockets hit their target areas "with a high degree of accuracy."

The tests were carried out May 18 and 25, Tass said. It did not say how many rockets were fired.

William McGreevey and Oscar Dehner have returned from a two-month tour of the South Pacific. They visited Bora, Society Island; Papeete, Tahiti; Rarotonga, Cook Islands; New Zealand, Australia, New Caledonia, Fiji Islands, Pago Pago, Samoa, and Honolulu. Previously to the voyage they visited relatives and friends in the Los Angeles area. Enroute home Mr. Dehner underwent an emergency operation at sea.

Mrs. Letha Rasmussen and Mrs. Grace Dickson, who are with Colorado College in Colorado Springs have returned to their homes in Palmer Lake and Pine Crest for the summer. They will resume work at the college in the fall.

Mrs. Walter Clausen, Mrs. Tom Hafer and Mrs. M. S. Carpenter were among those who attended the Republican Women's Round Table luncheon at the Stagecoach Inn in Manitou Springs on Wednesday.

Word was received from Pueblo of the death of Mrs. E. B. Vannest, a onetime resident of Palmer Lake, about 45 years ago. Her husband passed away some years ago. They are buried at Trinidad, Colorado.

Mrs. Anna Holloway is home from Penrose Hospital, where she has been for ten days undergoing a checkup.

Proposal for Cow Compensation Urged

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The following proposal is awaiting action by the Florida Legislature.

"Whereas, W. L. Richardson is a farmer, and

"Whereas, farmer Richardson had a cow, and

"Whereas in November of 1961, farmer Richardson had his cow tested for Bang's (disease) by the county agent, and

"Whereas, after the testing needle went in and came out of that cow's vein, all the blood came out too, and the cow died, and

"Whereas, at the time of demise of said cow, it was worth $150, and

"Whereas, since that time the other cows in farmer Richardson's herd have had yearlings, and the dead cow has not, and

"Whereas the value of such a yearling is $150—

"Now therefore, be it enacted by the legislature of the state of Florida that the comptroller is authorized to draw his warrant in the sum of $300 upon the general revenue fund in the state treasury in favor of W. L. Richardson."

Federal-State Friction May Be Discussed by JFK

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy, who likes to exchange views at a long, leisurely luncheon has a batch of Democratic governors in today for a discussion of mutual problems.

No one seems sure what those mutual problems are, but Gov. Karl Rolvaag of Minnesota pretty well summed up the gubernatorial reaction.

Reached just as he was leaving his office for Washington, Rolvaag was asked what he and Kennedy would talk about.

"I don't know," Rolvaag said. "He hasn't told me yet."

But since all governors at the luncheon are Democrats, it's a good guess there will be some talk of federal-state frictions and a lot of talk about politics.

This is the first of a series of luncheons for governors and for mayors, and White House press secretary Pierre Salinger says it's just a coincidence that all of the guests are Democrats.

It may be just a coincidence, too, that some of the states whose governors are here today will be critical battlefields in the 1964 presidential election, when the President undoubtedly will try for a second term.

Minnesota, for example, Kennedy beat his Republican foe, Richard M. Nixon, by only 22,000 votes. Rolvaag gave an even more dramatic illustration of how evenly the state is split. After months of recounting, Rolvaag finally won — by 91 votes.

Or take Illinois. Out of 4,750,000 votes, Kennedy squeaked through, thanks to big Chicago majorities, by less than 9,000 votes.

Or Tennessee. Once a shoo-in for Democrats, this border state has been going Republican in presidential elections, even though its governor and both senators are Democrats.

In addition to Rolvaag, these governors accepted the president's invitation:

Elbert N. Carvel of Delaware, Otto Kerner of Illinois, Matthew E. Welsh of Indiana, Richard J. Hughes of New Jersey, Frank G. Clement of Tennessee and Philip H. Hoff of Vermont.

Govs. Endicott Peabody of Massachusetts and John W. King of New Hampshire hoped to attend, but Gov. John N. Dempsey of Connecticut sent his regrets.

These luncheons, which have been used for editors on a state-by-state basis, have now developed a pattern of their own: Cocktails for those who want them, a relaxed lunch, a talk, over cigars, by the President on domestic and foreign issues, and then an open, informal discussion.

Not only did Kennedy not invite any Republicans today, he also ignored on this first go-around Southern governors who have argued for state sovereignty and against what they call federal encroachments.

Proposal for Cow Compensation Urged

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The following proposal is awaiting action by the Florida Legislature.

Whereas, W. L. Richardson is a farmer, and

Whereas, farmer Richardson had a cow, and

Political Satire Punctures Many British Balloons

By TOM A. CULLEN

LONDON (NEA) — Political satire — once described as the Englishman's substitute for bullfighting — is no longer the bloodless sport it was.

Satirical comedians now draw blood, and there is hardly a British politician who doesn't have some of their barbs stuck between his shoulder blades. Nor does the sport stop with politicians.

Some of Britain's most cherished institutions, including the Church of England and the Royal family, have come in for a lambasting. The Archbishop of Canterbury was ribbed for appearing on the same platform with "pop" singer Adam Faith.

But the big news here is that political satire is no longer a club in London are likewise wowing New York audiences.

But what has really boosted political satire into the big leagues is a weekly television program called "That Was the Week That Was" over the once staid channels of the British Broadcasting Company. The show has just begun a summer vacation but in the fall it will be back every Saturday night to slaughter a fresh herd of sacred cows for the benefit of 9,750,000 viewers. Among the program's favorite targets: Prince Philip, Prime Minister Macmillan and Harold Wilson, new leader of the Labor party.

Not all of its victims are British. President de Gaulle comes in for his share of ribbing, and one skit showed President Kennedy as part of his fitness program, standing on his head while talking to Pierre Salinger.

"The Week's" impact has been twofold. First of all, it has given satire a mass base. Starting with an audience of 3.5 million, it trebled its following in three months.

Secondly, it has destroyed the remaining taboos with which the BBC has hedged its programs.

In the past both radio and television were governed by a moral code as rigid as that which blinkered the film industry here for many years. Every radio and television producer was given a 16-page booklet of "Do's and Don'ts" for his guidance.

The BBC was particularly touchy about religion and sex. It would allow no jokes to be made about Adam and Eve or Cain and Abel. Nor could any comedian refer to B.C. as being "Before Crosby."

Also taboo: honeymoon couples, chambermaids, fig leaves, ladies' underwear, lodgers and traveling salesmen.

Now, the 16-page code has been completely scrapped. Producers are free to dwell upon fig leaves at their own discretion.

This does not mean that sound and video waves will now be flooded by traveling salesman jokes and skits about newly married couples. "But program content is now up to the good taste of each individual producer," as Tom Sloan, head of BBC television light entertainment, explained it.

Not all Britons are pleased with "The Week" and its liberalizing influence on broadcasting. The Guardian complained that the television program "savages every father figure in sight," and BBC's switchboards have been jammed by viewers protesting after some of its lampoons. Among the skits which have scandalized viewers: A quartet of Cardinals singing "Arrivederci Roma" when the Vatican Council adjourned.

A mutilated version of a Macmillan statement. By means of cutting and editing the film the prime minister is made to sound ludicrous.

A broadcast of the Queen about to embark on the royal yacht Britannia. The launch which is taking the Queen to the yacht springs a leak, and as it slowly sinks the commentator describes the clothes the Queen is wearing. He also notes that she is smiling radiantly as she swims for her life.

Outdoor Recreation Bill Signed by JFK

Heroism Medal Given To Colorado Milkman

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy signed today a bill to promote and develop outdoor recreation programs.

Congressional passage of the bill was described by the President as recognition "of the vital need to protect and wisely administer this nation's great heritage of outdoor recreation resources."

Signing the bill in his White House office, with about a dozen pens, the President noted that those about him had been instrumental in getting the bill through Congress. He gave one of the first pens to Rep. Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo.

The Empire State Building is 1,250 feet high.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges Tuesday presented a Colorado milkman the Louis Pasteur Gold Medal for heroism.

William L. Shaw, a milk delivery man from Grand Junction, received the medal for rescuing a two-year-old little girl from drowning in an irrigation canal.

The presentation was made in Hodges' office.

Shaw, although a poor swimmer, jumped into the 10-foot-deep Grand Valley irrigation canal and brought the child, Roxann Valasquez, safely back to the bank.

The medal is offered each year by the Milk Industry Foundation.

MORTARA, Italy (AP) — Mayor Alessandro Molella of little Zeme Lomellina has taken on the additional duties of winding the town clock. The mayor wasn't enthusiastic about doing it. But when veteran clock winder Giuseppe Llandro retired at 52 no one else was willing to take over the job.

Miller's Estate Set at Over $1 Million

DENVER (UPI) — An inventory filed in Denver County Court Monday valued the estate of the late Morris (Moe) Miller, founder of the Miller Super Market chain in Colorado and Wyoming at $1,294,509.

The inventory was filed by the First National Bank of Denver; Miller's widow, Mrs. Dora Miller and a son, Paul, of Denver.

Miller died Nov. 23, at the age of 65. He had built a $350 investment in a grocery to a regional chain that numbered 28 stores when it was sold to National Tea Co. in 1957 for more than $7 million.

Molybdenum Company Steps Up Exploration

NEW YORK (AP) — The president of Molybdenum Corp. of America said today his company has stepped up exploration activities at Questa, about 30 miles north of Taos, N. M.

"We have an ore body in exploration and we are trying to figure out what we have in the ground," said Winslow Bennett.

He added that the company is now spending an estimated $80,000 to $100,000 a month on surface and underground drilling.

"It is too early to say whether we have a mine but we hope we will have something to tell our stockholders in September," Bennett said.

The company has been exploring in the area for many years. Its mine at Questa has been shut since 1950, Bennett said. The current exploration is centered on lower grade ore.

Molybdenum is a metallic element resembling iron which is used to form steel-like alloys with carbon.

FOILED AGAIN

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — It was a hard day's work for the safe-crackers who broke into the Houston Erickson Oil Co. building.

First they broke a clasp on a side door and slipped the padlock off. Once inside they chiseled their way through a brick-up doorway and crawled into the office. An office safe was pulled from the wall and the knob knocked off with a sledge hammer.

Then they discovered the safe contained only records and had been left unlocked.

LONDON (NEA) — Political satire — once described as the Englishman's substitute for bull-fighting—is no longer the bloodless sport it was.

Satirical comedians now draw blood, and there is hardly a British politician who doesn't have some of their barbs stuck between his shoulder blades. Nor does the sport stop with politicians.

Some of Britain's most cherished institutions, including the Church of England and the Royal family, have come in for lambasting. The Archbishop of Canterbury was ribbed for appearing on the same platform with "pop" singer Adam Faith.

But the big news here is that political satire is no longer a minority cult, but has broadened out into a mass movement. Satirical comedians now play to big audiences in theaters and night clubs and on television. Their king playing discs sell briskly, too.

It has even become a profitable export line. The made-in-Britain revue "Beyond the Fringe" is now playing to packed houses on Broadway. Resident entertainers from "The Establishment" night club in London are likewise wooing New York audiences.

But what has really boosted political satire into the big leagues is a weekly television pro-

Not a day goes by when the British President de Gaulle comes in for his share of ribbing, and one skit showed President Kennedy as part of his fitness program, standing on his head while talking to Pierre Salinger.

The Week's" impact has been twofold. First of all, it has given satire a mass base. Starting with an audience of 35 million, it trebled its following in three months.

Secondly, it has destroyed the remaining taboos with which the BBC has hedged its programs.

Test

The BBC was particularly touchy about religion and sex. It would allow no jokes to be made about Adam and Eve or Cain and Abel. Nor could any comedian refer to B.C. as being "Before Crosby." Also taboo: honeymoon couples, chambermaids, fig leaves, ladies' underwear, lodgers and travelling salesmen.

Now, the 16-page code has been completely scrapped. Producers are free to dwell upon fig leaves at their own discretion.

This does not mean that sound and video waves will now be flooded by traveling salesmen jokes and skits about newly married couples. "But program content is now up to the good taste of each individual producer," as Tom Sloan, head of BBC television light entertainment, explained it.

Not all Britons are pleased with "The Week" and its liberalizing influence on broadcasting. The Guardian complained that the television program "savages every father figure in sight," and BBC's switchboards have been jammed by viewers protesting after some of its lampoons. Among the skits which have scandalized viewers:

A quartet of Cardinals singing "Arrivederci Roma" when the Vatican Council adjourned.

A mutilated version of a Macmillan statement. By means of cutting and editing the film the prime minister is made to sound ludicrous.

A broadcast of the Queen about to embark on the royal yacht Britannia. The launch which is taking the Queen to the yacht sprays a leak, and as it slowly sinks the commentator describes the clothes the Queen is wearing. He also notes that she is smiling radiantly as she swims for her life.

NEW YORK AP — The president of Molybdenum Corp. of America said today his company has stepped up exploration activities at Questa, about 30 miles north of Taos, N. M.

"We have an ore body in exploration and we are trying to figure out what we have in the ground," said Winslow Bennett.

He added that the company is now spending an estimated $80,000 to $100,000 a month on surface and underground drilling.

"It is too early to say whether we have a mine but we hope we will have something to tell our stockholders in September," Bennett said.

The company has been exploring in the area for many years. Its mine at Questa has been shut since 1950, Bennett said. The current exploration is centered on lower grade ore.

Molybdenum is a metallic element resembling iron which is used to form steel-like alloys with carbon.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — It was a hard day's work for the safecrackers who broke into the Houston Erickson Oil Co. building.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy signed today a bill to promote and develop outdoor recreation programs.

Congressional passage of the bill was described by the President as recognition "of the vital need to protect and wisely administer this nation's great heritage of outdoor recreation resources."

Signing the bill in his white House office, with about a dozen pens, the President noted that those about him had been instrumental in getting the bill through Congress. He gave one of the first pens to Rep. Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo.

DENVER UPI—An inventory filed in Denver County Court Monday valued the estate of the late Morris "Moe" Miller, founder of the Miller Super Market chain in Colorado and Wyoming at $2.5 million.

The inventory was filed by the First National Bank of Denver; Miller's widow, Mrs. Dora Miller and a son Paul, of Denver.

Miller died Nov. 23, at the age of 65. He had built a $350 investment in a grocery to a regional chain that numbered 28 stores when it was sold to National Tea Co. in 1957 for more than $7 million.

The Right of Asylum

The Gazette Telegraph editorial page differs from the editorial pages of most newspapers in that our primary concern is with principle and the preservation or expansion of human liberty.

Rarely do we comment on current happenings, save in the light of those principles involving human rights, including the right to own and manage property as an individual.

We take the view that most actions undertaken by a state are simply the kind of action taken by countless thousands of people outside of the state and that lacking state action, most of what the government does now could be done cheaper, more honestly, more effectively and quicker than is presently the case.

In short, we take the view that when the state does a good job, as is not at all impossible, nonetheless the same job could have been done otherwise and in a more moral, wholesome and constructive manner.

It goes without saying that when the state does a poor job, as is often the case, we can find little excuse for the event regardless of how many alibis are produced.

But once in a while the state becomes involved, not in a good job or a poor job, but in a positively malignant undertaking. And when the involvement is known, and it appears that the action of the government is such that it is grossly in violation of human rights, then we feel we should speak up about it with some severity.

The case in point relates to the exiled president of Venezuela, Perez Jimenez, who was deposed as president of his country in 1958, fled from his rival as a political refugee and found asylum in this country in 1959.

Now to our view, Jimenez was not a good leader when he was in power. He was a dictator, and although he was friendly to this country and, indeed, was decorated by President Dwight Eisenhower in 1954 with the Legion of Merit, he was never one of our favorites. We don't like political tyrants of any stripe.

It is true, we believe, that Jimenez was opposed to Russian communism and favored a kind to start life again as an honest of Venezuelan socialism, which man.

Business Collects Nearly All Taxes

There is no doubt at all but that businessmen generally are the mainstay of the entire tax picture. The businessmen often object with considerable vocal ability to the size of the tax they pay, the fact remains that businessmen not only produce virtually all the money that government collects, they also assist in collecting the major portion of all the dollars that flow into the treasury.

A small residue of tax dollars flows from savings into the federal coffers. This is not a large sum when compared to the total revenue produced in business and industry.

Also, there are some taxes which businessmen do not collect but which Uncle Sam collects on his own.

Of the $94 billion in taxes which the federal government got hold of in fiscal 1962, approximately 84 per cent was collected by and from business, according to a recent study made by the Tax Foundation.

Roughly, the breakdown is as follows:

Corporation income tax	$20,523,000
Old Age & Survivors tax	$11,544,000
Federal unemployment tax	$553,000
Railroad retirement tax	$64,000
Customs (estimated)	1,028,000
Withholding tax from wages	$2,699,000
Federal excise taxes	$2,534,000
Total taxes collected from and by business	$79,255,000

No wonder the Internal Revenue Service has been happy to praise the businessman for his business-like cooperation with the department. Commissioner Caplin, in charge of the I.R.S., has recently been led to make the following observations:

"American business enterprise showed a grand total of business receipts of over $1 trillion, with net profits totaling $84 billion. "Business payrolls," he said, "account for the most of the $270

Robin Hood Government

From The New Conservative Colorado University
Lowering the boom on waitresses, at Denver's Tiffin Inn, the omniscient United States Tax Court in Washington felt inclined to "estimate" the "income" the waitresses received in tips so that they could be taxed. Basing their findings on a yearly $1.9 million income of Tiffin Inn and speculating that any self-respecting patron would leave at least a ten per cent tip, the Tax Court calculated that one waitress must have received as much as $3,300 that she failed to report.

The taxing powers of the federal government, in effect, have few limitations, and they have been and will be used in a fashion based on expediency rather than principle. The fact is, the federal government is little more than a thief — occasionally a Robin Hood, but more often a robber baron — who drains off the economic surpluses of every individual American. In doing so it has severely curtailed progress — a genuine progress resulting from the voluntary interaction of individuals as opposed to the diabolical "progress" of a totalitarian or socialist state infatuated with the mysterious, non-existent "common good."

Real progress derives from human surpluses. It is not progress to starve a man to launch a Sputnik, to rob a man to create an H-bomb, to provide "Medicare" or to ensconce an "unfailing" planner in Washington. This is the essence of the Neanderthal, the feudal and fascist, the socialist political ideologies. These are not philosophies of rational human beings or men of principles, but are ideologies of the plunderers and looters who have been the downfall of every major civilization in history.

The taxing powers of the U.S. government must be severely curtailed and the limitations of these powers rigidly observed. The federal establishment obviously has the power to confiscate an individual's earnings, but no intellectually respectable political philosophy would hold that the federal government has a right to demand and take the man rights exist, political asylum is almost a matter of course or to tax that man on a supposed if the refugee will simply agree to cease and desist from his former political gyrations.

To our own view, we can find no particular reason for tossing Jimenez to the Betancourt wolves, any more than we could find reason for tossing Betancourt to the Jimenez wolves, were the situation suddenly to be reversed.

The question, as we see it, becomes nothing more than the matter of human right to political asylum. And we would be inclined to argue that the reformed politician, regardless of the forces that brought about his reformation, is entitled to a chance communism and favored a kind to start life again as an honest of Venezuelan socialism, which man.

Question Box

Question No. 237: "Has any man ever improved the well-being of all mankind who did not have convictions?"

The answer is that we cannot think of any improvement in the well being of all mankind by men who did not have convictions.

Socrates certainly had convictions. Henry D. Thoreau had convictions. Emerson had convictions. Jefferson had convictions. Joseph Galambos has convictions. Orval Watts has convictions. And these men have such respect convictions that they are devoting their lives and energy in trying to get people to believe much too soon, rather than too little and too late."

Rockefellers Invest In Venezuela

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN
This columnist has his doubts that Nelson Rockefeller would make the most effective Republican candidate for President in 1964, if only because his "image" is too similar to the image projected by John F. Kennedy. But if Rockefeller should manage to capture the White House, it is virtually certain that a new note of healthy realism would be introduced into such things as foreign aid and the inter-American alliance, the progress.

During World War II Rockefeller served the Roosevelt administration as co-ordinator of inter-American affairs. He came out of the war convinced that something had to be done to provide investment outlets in Latin America that would prove as attractive to local capital as the ancient triumvirate of "land, holdings, buildings or boardings."

The quotation is from a Rockefeller report made while he was chairman of something called the International Development Advisory Board. The sterilization of wealth was stopping progress all over Latin America.

Working from his war-gained insights, Nelson Rockefeller set up an entirely non-government international basic economy corporation in 1947, with a total capital of $12.5 million contributed largely by himself and his four brothers. The aim of IRECO was to get local industries going in Venezuela and other underdeveloped lands, and then, after they had gotten a good start, to sell them either in whole or in part to local enterprises.

The first ventures of IRECO were amateurish and starry-eyed. A fishing company in Venezuela, capitalized for $1.5 million, failed because it hadn't reckoned with the fact that Venezuelans don't particularly like to eat fish. A farm development company went to pieces when it tried to apply temperate zone methods of weed control to the tropics. Said Nelson Rockefeller, ruminating on the collapse of the first IRECO enterprise, "It was a case of too much too soon, rather than too little and too late."

But all of this was 15 years ago. Taking a second running start, the Rockefeller Brothers' Company began experimenting in a small way with Venezuelan supermarkets. Here the company has had a phenomenal success: IRECO now has 18 supermarkets going in Venezuela, with seven more due to open this year. Research Report

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, Ph.D.
About six weeks ago I made a needed because of the higher cost switch in my radio-listening style of living which is caused by inflation. I continue to use my ears, of course, but my listening has become more and more selective as I've tried to find a clue to the intellectual capacity, intelligence, or reasoning ability of public office holders. After 42 days of making notes, listening and making more notes, I am compelled to admit defeat. You have sense enough to warn a parent. Don't blow it up any more, just can't find a clue to some-thing which, apparently, does not exist. Here are a few of the items which contributed to my defeat.

A reduction in income taxes would grow much more. He be-stimulate the economy because lives its present size is just this will leave more money in the hands of those who earned the money, which those who earned the money will spend. It's quite other instant the mayor was talking about the more taxes are being about his plans for a more reduced, the more the economy lovely city, new parks, new civic will be stimulated but the politi-cultural buildings, more gov-ernmental services and no in-really important reduction in crease in the present tax struc-tures. At the same time, govern-ment wants to eliminate what it calls tax loopholes. Now the mon-ey which remains in the hands of those who search for the loopholes in the idiotic tax laws, for some strange reason or other does not stimulate the economy. Since government wants to eliminate these sums of economy-stimu-lating money, it must consider that some money depresses the economy and some money stimu-lates the economy, and it pre-tends to an omniscience which enables it to separate one kind of money from other money.

In the meantime, government plans increases in its size and cost and power which will take still more money out of the product and service-producing aspect of the economy, as a means of stimulating the economy which thrives on products and services. Don't blame me for this confusion, this administration isn't on my conscience.

A member of a city government admits that excessive taxation is creating a horrible burden on the taxpayers. The politician is adamant, he will not increase pres-ent taxes! He is stern and positive and almost violent in his reaction against any tax increases. HE WANTS NEW TAXES!

Government in a city which has lost some of its population during the past twenty years must find ways and means to increase its revenue because of the population loss. With fewer people to pay the taxes, higher taxes are needed for city government.

Governments in cities and states and counties which have enjoyed a population increase must find new taxes to take care of the needs of an increasing population. Where the population in a city or county or state is rela-

IT WON'T WORK
To the Editor:
From each according to his ability, to each according to his need," long the battle cry of those who worship government, is not working out the way they said it would.

We have seen men and women working for a living, paying taxes, supporting and raising families on less money than is handed out to people on relief. The fellow using his ability is taxed, his needs ignored. While the needs of others are subsid-ized, their abilities are ignored. While we and I use the cheap-er spread on our bread, the per-capita consumption of butter by the general public in 1962 was 6.2 pounds; those who get their butter free from the federal price support program consumed 10 pounds. When men are most free to use their abilities to provide for their needs, we are all best off, and the best off of all are those who can then get off relief. When govern-ment must force us to slave for the government, for how else could the government provide our needs?

Each under his fig tree, it is written, but that is not the way it is now being done. God was wrong!

Some Thoughts About Change

By THURMAN SENSING
Among the most important things for young journalists to acquire are a critical eye and a critical ear.

The capacity to distinguish between truth and cant is essential in a world in which propaganda and special pleading passes for information or even education.

This thought comes to mind in reading a news report of an address made to student journalists at Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va. Marya Mannes, a staff writer for The Reporter, a magazine of liberalism, discussed "Fear of change" before a meeting of students attending the Southern Interscholastic Press Association.

"Now fear of changes does strange things to people," Miss Mannes said. "It closes their eyes, it ties their hands, it stops them from thinking or question-ing." Then she gave some ex-amples of her beliefs. "Fear of change makes some people yell socialism when any plan for the public good is proposed and other people yell communism" when a limitation of private enterprise is suggested. The fear of change makes Americans resist in-tegration has done more to help the communist cause than the world than a dozen Castros."

She suggested that Americans should examine "coolly" the communistic and socialistic political systems in the world rather than reject everything "im-mediately and violently."

A number of interesting ques-tions arise from this talk. First of all, public school officials and community leaders in the South may justifiably ask how, why and who invited a speaker who urged students not to "immedi-ately" reject everything in the Communist system. This was a very strange comment for Miss Mannes to make. Offhand, one can't think of a thing in the communist or social systems that doesn't warrant immediate and total rejection by right-thinking Americans.

STRAW MAN
But leaving that aside, let's look at her comments on change. In one sense, her remarks consist of knocking down a straw man. No one resists change it-self. Life, as everyone knows, is one change after another. American society isn't a stone block that never alters its shape. Rather, it is public discussion con-cerned with the direction of change — whether it results in good or evil. Change for the good is always welcome. Change that leads a person or country back-ward is to be resisted.

but you haven't been listening. All I can do is wish you good luck and good health. In Free-dom.

Are We Castro's Protector

By RUSSELL KIRK
In Venezuela, large pro-Castro guerrilla forces are harassing the democratic government, so that President Betancourt's administration has become very shaky indeed. In Colombia, similar Communist forces operate in the back country, on a large scale. In both regions, the terrorists are supplied and reinforced from Havana.

Castro's irregulars already have made descents upon Panama, Guatemala, and Nicaragua and are ready for attempts upon Haiti and Santo Domingo. Apparently the Latin American communists do not find raids and sabotage and guerrilla cam-paigns ineffectual, even tho the number and firepower of the gov-ernmental forces opposing them are much greater.

This being so, the stand of the Kennedy administration concern-ing raids of the Cuban exiles against the Castro despotism is remarkably puzzling. Altho the United States has taken no steps to protect her allies in Venezue-la and Colombia by a blockade of Cuba which would shut off supplies to the terrorists, Amer-ican naval forces and police now are employed to break up the resistance of the free Cu-bans fighting against Castro! Be-ing too unimposed to interfere with the robber, we content ourselves with bullying the robber's vic-tims.

One excuse promulgated by our country? Are we Castro's State Department and the benign protectors?

BY ADMIRAL BEN MOREELL
Editor's Note: The following is a speech given by Admiral Moreell before the National Association of Purchasing Agents at Cleveland in 1950. It is even more timely today than when it was given because we are more confused today than then.

When Charles Darwin's book, On the Origin of Species, appeared in 1859 it was strongly condemned by those who believed that his theory of evolution contradicted the thesis that man is a creature of God. But now it is generally accepted that the theory of evolution is not a contradiction of God's designs for mankind.

Today I want to discuss with you not the origin of species, but the survival of species, and I want to discuss this subject in terms of faith in my fellow man, which stems from a faith in God. I might have chosen a shorter title — a single word — liberty. For I believe that the key to the survival of civilization is human liberty. When our liberty is gone — whether because some aggressor takes it from us by force, or because we ourselves willingly vote it away — civilized man will die. Men will become robots, machines without minds, controlled and driven by godless masters.

GOD AND FREEDOM

I believe that God intended men to be free to make their own decisions and to be responsible for the consequences of those decisions. Thus it seems to me that it is an act against God for men to pass laws which destroy individual liberty, which deprive persons of the responsibility for their own acts or for their own welfare. Such laws are advocated by persons who lack faith in God and in their fellow men.

It seems to me that there is convincing evidence to support my beliefs on this subject. And the basic evidence is found in the fact that no person is physically or mentally or morally identical to any other person. For example, everyone knows that the fingerprints of all persons are different. And these differences — these individualities, these inequalities — carry through all the physical, mental, and moral characteristics of mankind. It seems to me that if we have faith in God, we must realize that He had a purpose in designing us so that no person is like any other person; that is to say, so that each person is an individual. Let us examine this God-given individuality of men and speculate upon its relationship to liberty and responsibility and survival.

THE RIGHT TO CHOOSE

It must be obvious that liberty necessarily means freedom to choose foolishly as well as wisely; freedom to choose evil as well as good; freedom to enjoy the rewards of good judgment, and freedom to suffer the penalties of bad judgment. If this is not true, the word "freedom" has no meaning. Yet there are persons in America who wish to pass laws to force people to do only "good," or at least their concept of what is good. These would-be dictators are not content with a preventive law which punishes a person who deliberately chooses to injure his neighbor; a law which prevents any person from forcing his viewpoint upon any other person; a law which penalizes the person who interferes with the liberty of others. On the contrary, these persons who arrogate to themselves the functions of God demand a positive law to compel others to do as they wish them to do. And — for some reason which I cannot understand — these same people use the words "liberty" and "democracy" to justify their plans to deprive other men of freedom.

These proposed laws are frequently justified on the ground that there are physical and mental inequalities in the world; that those inequalities result in economic inequalities; and that the primary function of government is to pass laws which will tend to equalize such inequalities. Is not this concept of government a rather brazen indictment of God? Is not this an acceptance of the communist theory of using force to take "from each according to his abilities" and to give "to each according to his needs"? It is true that no two persons are equal, and that some persons receive more pay for their services than do other persons. But my faith in God makes me insist that there is a logical and good reason for this fact. And I believe that this is the reason.

THE SOURCE OF PROGRESS

This inequality among persons is a law of nature — a law which is just as unchangeable and just as necessary to understand as is any other natural law, as for example, the law of gravity. This particular law is known as the "law of variation," and from the unrestricted operation of this law of nature comes all human progress. The law of variation permits children to be different from their parents. It permits brothers to think differently and to act differently. It permits the existence of both misers and philanthropists; saints and sinners; rich and poor. It permits inventors to invent, managers to manage — and purchasing agents to purchase. It permits each person to seek a job or profession which is most suited to his inherent talents and his desires. It encourages a voluntary division of labor, with resulting maximum efficiency and greater prosperity for all. Without this variation — this inequality — our social structure would be similar to that of an anthill or a beehive, where each member is born to do a certain predetermined job which he does with blind allegiance to his society and with no consideration of personal interests or preferences.

Unfortunately there are many persons in the world who hate variations and inequalities, who admire the type of society developed by the ants and bees. These people see that variation among human beings has allowed one person to produce more than another, with resulting differences in material possessions and comforts. And then these self-appointed supervisors of human destiny, who cannot tolerate variation, begin to agitate for a law to take away from the high producer and give to the low producer. They want to use the force of government to repeal the law of variation; to redesign mankind; to force their concepts of morality and economics on all other persons; in short — to play God.

MASTER-MINDS AT WORK

And in this process they deny to every person the right to dispose of the products of his own labor as he chooses. On the contrary, it must be as they, the "master minds," decree. These so-called "dogooders" and "benevolent" legislators deny this right of choice to the producer because they fear that other people will spend their earnings in a pattern different from that which they would plan for them. They have no faith in the voluntary decisions of free persons.

For example, the person who earns the money might want to endow a college or a hospital or a summer camp for poor children; but the planner wants to take the money away from him and use it to subsidize "cheap" electricity for the people who live in Tennessee or in the Pacific Northwest. The person with a good income might want to spend some of his money for a trip around the world, but the planner calls this "social inequality," and he proposes a law whereby the government may take the individual's money, by force, and use it for some so-called "socially useful" purpose like encouraging the growth of surplus potatoes, for which there is no market, in order that they may be destroyed. Or the planner may propose to deprive the producer of his money and apply it to some alleged "social good" like government ownership of housing, or a government steel plant, or government-controlled education, or some similar project which gives to government the power to tell the people what they must or must not do; how they must or must not live.

ENEMIES OF LIBERTY

I am willing to concede that the dog-doer may have the best intentions in the world. But it cannot be denied that the laws he proposes always involve more government, more government ownership and operation of the means of production, more government interference in the distribution of what individuals have produced, more power for government and less freedom of choice for individuals. I hold that the people who advocate these positive laws against freedom of choice are — knowingly or unknowingly — the enemies of freedom and progress. They themselves have lost all faith in liberty and in the ability of free persons to care for themselves and voluntarily to extend a helping hand to their neighbors in need. Thus they band together to advocate laws antagonistic to humanity, laws which restrain liberty, thwart variation, belie inequalities, and defy God's design.

Against the background of my many years of service in the Navy, I make this declaration: I do not fear the Russian Army, or the atom bomb, or the hydrogen bomb, nearly so much as I fear this concept of using the law to relieve individuals of the responsibility for their own welfare and to deprive them of their freedom of choice. We can all see the danger of a military threat to our freedom. If we are attacked we will fight, and we will win! But few of us appear to understand this insidious process whereby we use our own laws and our own government to destroy our own liberties just as surely as if some foreign conqueror had power over us.

Here is an example of how we are deceiving ourselves: Let us suppose that some foreign power could confiscate the incomes of persons in America; and let us suppose, further, that this foreign power were to confiscate 50 per cent of the income of our most efficient producer. Would this producer continue to produce abundantly under such circumstances, or would he not soon relax and begin producing only enough to subsist himself and those dependent upon him? This situation is easy enough to understand when we visualize the confiscator as a foreigner. But we do not seem to understand it when the confiscator is a combination of fellow citizens. For we ourselves have voted to confiscate 50 per cent of the income of our best producers.

THE WAY TO COMMUNISM

When will this confiscation of an individual's income rise to 100 per cent? Do you believe that ambitious men who are hungry for power would stop short of this complete communism if, by going on, they could achieve their aims? Let us consider this question. Just how much liberty does a person really have when more than half of his earnings are taken from him without his consent and are spent for purposes distasteful to him?

Not satisfied with taking this high percentage of a person's income, we Americans have also voted to confiscate 38 per cent of the earnings of our most successful industries even before the owners of the income get it. And our representatives in Congress are now considering the possibility of raising the take to 41 per cent.

Even in conquered Germany and Japan, we would not dare to take 38 per cent of the industrial earnings, because we know that the results would be disastrous. And yet, in the face of this knowledge, we are seriously considering taking 41 per cent of the earnings of all successful American industries. Unless we change the present course of our thinking in America, the next step will be 50 per cent — and then more.

THE END OF THE ROAD

It makes one wonder whether we are deliberately trying to destroy ourselves. All along this course our liberties begin to slip away from us. In the beginning this happens slowly and almost unnoticed. The "emergency" and "temporary" restrictions and "compulsions" by government are not generally recognized as lost liberties. But the end result of this procedure — a procedure that always comes neatly wrapped in the American flag and labeled "social justice" — is complete government control, complete loss of liberty, and the extinction of civilized man as we know him. Why should this confiscation — a percentage of our production that even a conqueror would not dare to take — be called liberty? Why should the word "freedom" be used to describe these government compulsions and restrictions? Certainly the founders of this republic had no such concept of freedom.

Now I know that those who disagree with me will say that this is a democracy and that we can vote for anything we please; that, in fact, we can vote to turn all industry and all income over to the government, if we so desire.

That is true, but consider this: It is also true that we could vote to re-establish slavery in America. Would that make slavery "right" or "democratic"? We could democratically vote to have a state religion and to force everyone to conform to the majority decision, but that would make a mockery of democracy and the right to vote. We can democratically vote to print enough money to give every person a million dollars, but would such exercise of the franchise help anyone except those who wish to destroy America?

INALIENABLE RIGHTS

All these measures — and others of a similar nature — could be enacted legally and democratically under the concept of majority rule. But would any person be so foolish as to say that they should be enacted? Will any thinking person say that a law is "right" merely because a majority has voted for it? We must always remember that our Constitution was designed to protect the freedom of the smallest possible minority — one person — against the demands of the greatest possible majority — all other persons combined. That single idea of inalienable rights of the individual person is — or, at least, was — the fundamental spirit of the American tradition of government. And if we lose that concept of government, by force or by our own votes, the American dream of liberty will be ended.

I am very glad that we have a form of government that requires voting, because so long as this condition exists, there is nothing to prevent us from voting against these immoral laws that are leading the American people into bondage to their own government. It is still possible to turn back, and it is not yet too late to turn back. If we really want to face the responsibility, to pay the price, of a return to freedom, we can still have it.

HOW TO DESTROY PROGRESS
Let us speculate on the price which we must pay for liberty. First and foremost, all so-called

"welfare" schemes must go; for dependence upon government will destroy progress and production in two ways. First, the high producers will not continue to do their best if most of the product of their labor is taken from them. Second, the low producers will not be eager to work harder if they know that government will guarantee to them the security of housing, food, medical care, old age benefits, and the other necessities of life. If we continue along this path to the misnamed "welfare state," we must soon find ourselves in the position of our Reservation Indians, who have had a system of government-guaranteed "security" for the past hundred years.

The inevitable result of such "security" — to the Indians or to any other people who try it — is dramatically told in a report from a young minister, R. J. Rushdoo, who is now a missionary to the Indians on one of our American Reservations.

One of the surest consequences of a government of "welfare" and "security" is the rapid decline and death of responsibility and character.

Whatever the pre-reservation Indian was, and his faults were real, he was able to take care of himself and had a character becoming to his culture and religion. He was a responsible person. Today he is far from that. The wretched security he has had, beginning with the food and clothing of early years, destined to enforce the reservation system and destroy Indian resistance, has sapped him of character. The average Indian knows that he can gamble and drink away his earnings and still be sure that his house and land will remain his own, and, with his hunting rights, he can always eke out some kind of existence.

Government men too often hamper and impede the man with initiative and character. This is because their program inevitably must be formulated in terms of the lowest common denominator, the weakest Indian. In addition, the provisions of the government for the "welfare" and "security" of the Indians remove the consequences from their sinning and irresponsibility. The result is a license to irresponsibility, which all the touted government projects cannot counteract.

And I believe the results would be no better for the best hundred or thousand persons selected from any society, after a generation or so of the same kind of "welfare" and "security" government.

SLAVERY IN AMERICA

Let us look at another example from our own history. Here is a statement from a recently-published article called Wards of the Government by Dean Russell:

The constitutions of former American slave states generally specified that the masters must provide their slaves with adequate housing, food, medical care, and old-age benefits. The Mississippi Constitution contained this additional sentence:

"The legislature shall have no power to pass laws for the emancipation of slaves . . . (except) where the slave shall have rendered the State some distinguished service."

The highest honor that Mississippi could offer a man for distinguished service to his country was personal responsibility for his own welfare! His reward was freedom to find his own job and to have his own earnings, freedom to be responsible for his own medical care, freedom to save for his own old age. In short, his reward was the individual opportunities — and the personal responsibilities — that have always distinguished a free man from a dependent.

What higher honor can any government offer?

But many present-day Americans are trying to avoid this personal responsibility that is freedom. They are voting for men who promise to install a system of compulsory government-guaranteed "security" — a partial return to the old slave laws of Georgia that guaranteed to all slaves "the right to food and raiment, to kind attention when sick, to maintenance in old age . . ." And the arguments used to defend this present-day trend toward the bondage of a Welfare State are essentially the same arguments that were formerly used to defend the bondage of outright slavery.

For example, many of the slaveholders claimed that they knew what was "best for the slaves." After all, hadn't the masters "rescued" the slaves from a life of savagery? The advocates of government-guaranteed "security" also claim that they know what is best for the people. Many of them argue in this fashion: "After all, haven't the American people conclusively shown that they are incapable of handling the responsibility for their own welfare?"

Many of the slaveholders sincerely believed that the "dumb, ignorant slaves" would starve to death unless their welfare was guaranteed by the masters. And the advocates of compulsory "security" frequently say: "Are you in favor of letting people starve?"

But as proof of the fact that personal responsibility for one's own welfare brings increased material well-being, consider the emancipated slaves. Among them there were old and crippled and sick people. They had no homes, no jobs, and little education. But — most precious of all — the former slaves were responsible for their own welfare. They were free. They had the privilege of finding their own security.

Now compare the remarkable progress of those former slaves to the lack of progress of the American Indians who were made wards of the government; who were given state-guaranteed "security" instead of freedom with responsibility. In 1962, most American Negroes were slaves. Today they are about as self-supporting and responsible as other American citizens. Meanwhile the Indians as a group have become less self-supporting and more dependent on government aid. It has been claimed that many thousands of Indians will actually die of starvation unless the government feeds them. If this is true, why is it so?

HOW TO DESTROY A PERSON

To those two reports on the results of government-guaranteed "security" I desire to add this thought: If I should want to destroy you, I would try to relieve you of the responsibility for your own welfare and to make you dependent upon me for food, clothing, housing, medical care, and the other necessities of life. After a few years of such dependence you would be helpless, subject to my every command — in effect, a slave.

But in spite of the two cases I have noted above, and many similar ones which can be cited from the long record of history, there are well-intentioned but misinformed persons who still insist that unless government supports its citizens they will be ill-clothed, ill-housed, and ill-fed. This belief is often expressed by the question: "Would you let them starve?"

FREEDOM REJECTED

Do the people who utter such nonsense understand the meaning of their proposals? In effect they are saying that a free person in a free society cannot support himself; that a free American cannot or will not support his own family; that free Americans will permit their less fortunate neighbors to starve; that our American doctors will not aid a sick person who has no money; that persons with freedom of choice will choose to let homeless people sleep in the streets; that a free people will reject their responsibilities to their fellow men; and that we have renounced Christ's commandments on love and charity.

I refuse to concede that we Americans have sunk so low. If we have, then liberty is dead, and we are taking part in its interment. If we cannot and will not accept the responsibilities of liberty and a voluntary society of free men, then indeed is civilized man at the end of his rope. If I had any thought that this is the case, I would not be speaking to you today. For I believe that we Americans want liberty, and that we are willing and able to pay the price for it.

THE PRICE OF LIBERTY

This price which we must pay is the abolition of all special laws for all special groups and interests. Subsidies to businessmen as well as to farmers must stop. Special privileges and preferences for able-bodied veterans must be ended. There must be an end to special laws which exempt labor groups from the consequences of their actions. The special tax privileges for producer and consumer cooperatives must be repealed, or extended to all corporate business. The law which gives tenants special treatment at the expense of home owners must be abolished. Whatever the sacrifice, our government must live within its income; and the amount of that income which is taken from the people must be drastically reduced. We must abolish all privileges and ask of government the only equality which can possibly exist — equality before the law. In short, we must demand that government confine itself to the primary functions of protecting the life, liberty, and property of the individual — all individuals. Then each person will be free to do as he pleases so long as he does not interfere with the right of any other person to do as he pleases. Then each person will enjoy as much equality and security as it is possible for him to have in a world of admitted inequality and insecurity.

LIBERTY THE KEY TO SURVIVAL

I am aware that this price for

Editor's Note: This article, "Equality," is playing on the word "fallout." There are different kinds of fallout, and since fallout is such a popular subject as regards fallout from nuclear bombardment, it seems to us that it would be well to discuss the most neglected, real and most dangerous fallout — the fallout that results from not realizing the most important part of spiritual, intellectual and material progress, the respecting of private property.

The magazine from which this article was printed is published by The Society of Individualists in London, England. The Society was founded by Sir Ernest Benn, who was one of the few employers of labor who really understood the blessings that come from private property and laissez faire economy. He wrote many books.

We make no apology for reprinting below an article which appeared in "Freedom First" in the Summer Issue of 1956.

BY REALIST

(Freedom First)

The "Fall Out" from a nuclear explosion is more widespread, more lasting and may be more dangerous than the explosion itself. The radio-active dust of the French Revolution, as seems to have been seen by Edmund Burke almost among the thoughtful contemporaries, was the idea of equality. This has been floating around the world for a century and a half but it has only been precipitated in its full force in the first half of this century. It was postponed by the Napoleonic dictatorship and the Industrial Revolution until it was revived with terrible results by the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917.

On the face of it the idea of equality amongst men is benign and simple. Unfortunately it is constantly misinterpreted even by people of high intelligence and experience. The whole matter was summed up 23 centuries ago by Aristotle — "for if the persons are not equal they must not have equal shares; in fact this is the very source of all the quarrelling and wrangling in the world, either they who are equal have and get awarded to them things not equal or being not equal those things which are equal."

Justice has been well defined as "the absence of arbitrary inequality," but, as Aristotle indicates, it also implies the absence of arbitrary equality.

If an intellectual misunderstanding of the simple doctrine were all, comparatively small harm might have been done. Unfortunately the idea of equality is one which appeals to most men, at least in the sense that they wish to be equal to their superiors, but have no corresponding desire to be equal with those who are their inferiors. And the more ignorant, selfish and oppressed men are, the stronger is the appeal. It is the basis not merely of a desire for a more even distribution of economic goods but perhaps even worse, of an inferiority complex. This psychological disease not only affects individuals but organizations such as Trade Unions and Nations. It would be an interesting study to see how far the wars of this century, both great and small, have resulted from it.

Argument seems hopeless against emotion. As the Persian said before the battle of Plataea: — "No human affliction is worse than this, to know, and to be helpless."

All the same it is almost the only weapon which is left to combat or mitigate the disasters which have fallen and are falling so rapidly on almost all the nations of the world.

It happened through a series of racial, geographical and historical accidents that these islands became in effect the masters of a large part of the uncivilized world in the 19th century. The incalculable benefits this brought to its peoples seem seldom to be appreciated. It so happened also that we had been welded into a coherent whole by 1,000 years of struggling history and the idea of nationhood and democracy had received amongst us its most enduring and strongest expression. Such an idea was wholly foreign to the greater part of Asia and Africa. But amongst the rapids which swirl beneath the catastrophic falls of the Russian Revolution and two great wars, the idea of nationality, which curiously liberty may seem high to some people. I know that those groups and persons who now enjoy those special privileges will do all in their power to keep them — and to extend them. Even so, I have faith that the vast majority of the American people want liberty and are willing to accept the personal responsibility which liberty requires. I believe that the only requirement for the return to liberty is an understanding of what it is. I believe that we will understand it and that we will then return to it. I have this faith in my fellow Americans because I believe they will know that upon liberty — and upon liberty alone — depends the survival of the species!

enough was condemned by the Left Wing parties at home, was supported by them amongst the ignorant and warring tribes of these two continents. "We have and desire self-government. Therefore all other races, being equal, should have it too." This idea is a godsend to the murderous adventurers who, playing and preying on the feelings of the oppressed masses, have established themselves as independent patriots with the spreading of murder, corruption, fraud and tyranny.

The truth is that men even of the same race and particularly men of different races, are unequal by reason of history, their education and, most important, of their genetic qualities. They are of course equal in the sense that their character, their feelings, their pains and pleasures cannot be arbitrarily distinguished or disregarded, but in other respects their inequality is profound.

For consider equality at home. This is not unreasonably associated with democracy and universal suffrage. We can give, and have given, equal voting rights to the half-wit, the criminal and the greatest men amongst us, but we cannot give them true equality. Inequality is inescapable. We can deny it, shut our eyes to it, degrade and even execute superior men, but we cannot abolish it. "E pur si muove!"

It might be thought that the great danger of attempted equality would be the reduction of all men to the same level. This would be a desperate disaster, for a battalion can only march at the pace of its slowest soldier. But it may be doubted whether it can happen; certainly it cannot endure. The result of an attempt at equality of this kind has been throughout history and is today tyranny and a slave state. Are we sure, even in this country, that we are safe from that?

The effects of equalitarianism at home, though they have not resulted in a dictatorship, are already becoming serious. Many people think that the real prosperity of the manual workers of this nation, considerable, though not so great as inflation makes it appear, is the result of pressure on their behalf by Trade Unions. Whether this is true to any extent is, to say the least, doubtful. What is certain is that the enormous increase in production is the result mainly of exercise of the brains, character and organizing power of superior men and the adaptation by industry, particularly large scale industry, of scientific discoveries and inventions. Was it not Foch who said — "It was not the Carthaginian Army that crossed the Alps, it was Hannibal." It is now becoming obvious that we are short of people of the necessary intellectual and moral powers even to maintain, still less to improve, the nation's economic standards. This is largely due to equalitarian doctrines, which result in the less useful members of society receiving greater honour and being paid more than is proper relatively to the more useful brain workers. It is now a commonplace that neither young men, nor their parents, are prepared in large enough numbers to make the sacrifices necessary for a prolonged training, since they can so easily earn comparatively large sums, with a very low degree of training, and even though they may ultimately attain higher economic levels than their fellows, the difference in remuneration, taxation bearing into account, is not sufficient to induce them to bear the sacrifices required.

Man is not only a sentient being. He is a machine. If good machinery is neglected or destroyed his comfort and even his existence will be destroyed. There is one other matter which should be touched on here. In order to escape the manifest falsity of purely equalitarian doctrines many people substitute equality of opportunity as an aim for absolute equality. Few people, however, seem to examine its true implications. In the first place it is completely and absolutely different from the idea of equality since, as is obvious in any athletic meeting, or in any phase of life, men are not equal, and if they are given equal opportunity, the rewards will be unequal; only one man can win a race, he will get a prize which none of the others shares. One must consider when equality of opportunity is to start, to maintain the athletic metaphor, ought the whole of the competitors to be stopped in the middle of a race and to be started again afresh on equal terms? Is equality of opportunity to start at birth? If so, does this mean that parents who have shown exceptional qualities of skill, thrift and care for their children, are to obtain no advantage over those who are responsible for nothing but irresponsible reproduction? Again, are children to be taken from their parents' care immediately they are born? If not, it is obvious that those children whose parents are of a higher order than others will be bound to give their children great advantages in early infancy. Are all children to be given equality of opportunity when, say, they attain school age? If so, that again means depriving parents of the incentive to work and save for their children, which is one of the greatest things economically and morally in the life of any State and in particular of a modern State. The same arguments apply to an attempt to give equality of opportunity after education is over. In short, are parents who have saved and worked and are therefore likely to be of superior stock not to be able to help their children to attain higher opportunities of service and reward than those who have not? Are the "good for nothings" for ever to be paid for by the "good for somethings" as Herbert Spencer foretold? Is not the truth that equality of opportunity is a chimera? Of course there should not be gross and arbitrary inequality of opportunity but can anything more be truly said than this?

To sum up a subject which could be expanded to a great length, the whole idea of equality in sense of absolute equality is ridiculous. If we write "John Smith — Jack Jones" that means nothing except that John Smith and Jack Jones are different names for the same person. If we say that John Smith and Jack Jones should have equal opportunities then, as has been said, practically insoluble difficulties arise.

To recapitulate, the terrible danger of equalitarian ideas is not merely that they are seldom accurately apprehended but they appeal to so much that is lowest in human nature, and, paradoxical as it appears, they result in depriving human beings of an otherwise attainable measure of the equality which they most need, the power to develop their own qualities and nature.

Deadly Competitor

From Wall Street Journal

The act of 1936 setting up the Rural Electrification Administration authorized the agency to make loans for furnishing electricity to "persons in rural areas." How is it, then, that in the last few years five out of six new REA co-op customers haven't been truly rural at all, but commercial, industrial and non-rural residential?

For one thing, REA activities reflect the changing character of the nation; farms are fewer, suburbs have sprawled out from the cities into once-rural lands. And REA Administrator Norman Clapp contends that a territory developed by a co-op "in good faith" when it was rural still is co-op territory even today it may be a vast suburban or industrial complex.

For another, as Hubert Kay notes in an article in the February Fortune magazine, the REA's co-ops have become increasingly aggressive in going after commercial-industrial business. So much so that whereas it once used only 25 per cent of its loans to build new generating plants and transmission lines it now uses over 36 per cent. The REA system's rapid growth as a power producer has further alarmed already skittish investor-owned power companies, which see in REA an ever-expanding power grid with which they cannot forever compete.

For the private utilities pay from 4 per cent to 5 per cent for money they need to borrow; the co-ops have the use of federal funds at 2 per cent (which the government borrows at 4 per cent); utilities pay out about 24 cents in taxes of each dollar received, including 13 cents in federal income tax; co-ops pay no direct federal taxes at all and, as co-ops, enjoy preferred state and local tax treatment. And whereas companies are tightly regulated by state and federal agencies, most co-ops can set their own rates. So the co-ops' competitive advantage is immense.

Now there's one fairly simple way to bring about competition on a more nearly equal basis. And that is to strip the REA co-ops of their protective mantle of subsidies and preferences and thus force them to really compete with private companies. In short, make the REA pay its way in the market place.

But as it is, the REA stands as an archetype of a government agency that not only refuses to die when no longer needed but also uses every unfair means available to kill off its investor-financed competition.

The Right of Asylum

The Gazette-Telegraph editorial page differs from the editorial pages of most newspapers in that our primary concern is with principle and the preservation or expansion of human liberty.

Barely a day comment on current happenings save in the light of those principles involving human rights including the right to own and manage property as an individual.

We take the view that most actions undertaken by a state are simply the kind of action taken by countless thousands of people outside of the state and that lacking state action most of what the government does now could be done cheaper, more honestly and more effectively and quicker than is presently the case.

In short we take the view that when the state does a good job as is not at all impossible nonetheless the same job could have been done otherwise and in a more moral, wholesome and constructive manner.

It goes without saying that when the state does a poor job, as is often the case, we can find little excuse for the event regardless of how many alibis are produced.

But once in a while the state becomes involved in a good shift occurs and the men who have been hailed as criminals become heroes and the former heroes become the new crop of villains.

This fact is so well known that we have observed, in those nations where some residue of respect for human life and human rights exist, political asylum is almost a matter of course.

The case of Betancourt relates to the exiled president of Venezuela, Perez Jimenez, who was deposed as president of his country in 1958, fled from his rival as a political refugee and found asylum in this country in 1959.

Now to our view, Jimenez was found reason for leaving Venezuela, not a good leader when he was in power. He was a dictator, and were the situation suddenly to be reversed.

Lowering the boom in Washington, the boom in the business world is being followed by a boom in the government. The government is now the largest employer in the country, and it is now the largest spender. The government is now the largest owner of property, and it is now the largest debtor. The government is now the largest polluter, and it is now the largest violator of the law.

On May 11 of this year the Supreme Court decided that the reason, unstated in law or established by precedent, Perez Jimenez would have to terminate his sojourn in this country and depart.

Were he to return to Venezuela or fall into the hands of his successor, Romulo Betancourt, there is every reason to suppose that Senor Jimenez would not be long for this world.

Traditionally, in civilized countries, political asylum has been granted even to men of tarnished reputation. Batista, for instance, another dictator, found haven on these shores. So have others of like background and political crimes, as such are of such magnitude that they appear to be benign only to those in power.

Rockefellers Invest In Venezuela

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

When the Rockefeller family, one of the most powerful in America, decided to invest in Venezuela, it was a significant move. The Rockefellers have been investing in Venezuela for some time, but this latest move is a major one. They have invested in a large oil field, and they have also invested in a large steel mill. This move is a clear statement of the Rockefellers' confidence in Venezuela's future.

New Breed Challenges Indianapolis

By JERRY LISK
Associated Press Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The record onslaught should continue and a motor dynasty may tumble in the 47th Memorial Day 500-mile auto race Thursday as 33 daring of the new breed of cars and skilled drivers roar off to nowhere before an estimated 250,000.

This merciless matching of men and machines—including four new breed cars—against the perils and pounding of 200 whirled around the mammoth Indianapolis Motor Speedway will pay off handsomely.

A record half-million-dollar purse was envisioned in last called invincible four-bangers, minute estimates, which would be shattered by the Lotus make the top prize well above Ford's two Chevy-powered entries the $125,015 swap captured last year.

Speed During Pit Stops Key to Winning the 500

By DALE BURGESS
INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—It's impressive each year when the winning driver in the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race is handed a check for about $125,000 by Tony Hulman, owner of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

It looks good on television cameras at the victory dinner and makes workers in other fields start thinking of a misspent life.

Actually, the car wins the race and that certified check is made out to the owner. The driver operates on a contract for 45 or 50 per cent.

The Speedway management recognizes a winning performance as a team effort.

If the team lineup had been listed last year for the winning No. 3 Leader Card Special, it would have gone like this:

Driver, Roger Ward.
Chief mechanic and refueler, A. J. Watson.

year by Roger Ward, only two-time winner still wheeling. Ideal racing weather—partly cloudy and in the 70s—is forecast. Much has been made of a promise of only one pit stop by two of the new challengers of the Offenhauser regime—the Lotus-Ford to be driven by the grand prix pair of Scotland's Jim Clark and Californian Dan Gurney.

The 23 Offies, including favored Parnelli Jones' pole position racer, usually need three pit stops for refueling and tire changes for the full 500-mile route.

But if the string of 16 successive wins by Offenhausers, the so-called purse was envisioned in last called invincible four-bangers, minute estimates, which would be shattered by the Lotus make the top prize well above Ford's two Chevy-powered entries the $125,015 swap captured last year.

Air jack operator, Larry Shindoda.

Owner, cheer leader and water boy for driver, Robert C. Wilkie. Shindoda is a General Motors car designer. Sparks an Allison engineer. Koda and Dinn mechanics and Wilkie a Milwaukee greeting card manufacturer with the racing bug.

Watson builds racing cars at Glendale, Calif., and follows them on the U. S. Auto Club's championship circuit. He has been training his pit crew for eight years and if it doesn't change three tires, fill the fuel tank and get the car back on the track in less than 20 seconds, he thinks it's loading.

There is no left front wheel changer because this tire usually lasts the full 500 miles.

Watson picks his crew for muscle, dexterity and level-headedness. They operate like a team of surgeons.

Shindoda connects a compressed air hose almost before the car stops rolling and it leaps up on three legs built into the chassis. Watson squirts alcohol fuel into the tank under high pressure while the wheel men knock off the single wing nuts that hold the wheels to the spindles. They stick the new wheels on, hit the wheel nut a couple of licks with a hammer, and the car roars back into the race.

Last year, Ward's crew went through its routine three times in a total of 1 minute, 2.6 seconds. His teammate, Len Suttoli, finished second by 16.52 seconds after spending 1 minute, 6.5 seconds on three pit stops.

Eddie Sachs, who took third money, spent less time on the track than either Ward or Suttoli. His three pit stops took 1 minute, 27.1 seconds—24.5 seconds more than Ward's. He took the checkered flag 1.3 seconds back of the winner.

The fuel often catches fire as it is being squirted into the tank a few inches from a hot exhaust pipe. A fireman stands with an extinguisher usually pointed at the tank and usually can smother a blaze in seconds. It's a spooky situation, nevertheless.

Parnelli Jones, early leader in the '62 race, lost his brakes and crewmen acted as human anchors to drag him to a stop in the pits. This organized confusion is the reason real racing buffs try to get seats on the inside of the main straightaway, as near as possible to the pit. As often as not, that's where the bug race is won or lost.

three eight-cylinders Novis, the Thursday, it's every man and his answer lies in Thursday's moment of truth which stretches itself. The qualifying runs are for only one of the 2 1/2 mile laps and experimental runs are like morning workouts by thoroughbreds.

Once speedway owner Tony Hulman barks "Gentlemen, start your engines" at 11 a.m. EST. In 1961, only 12 cars were running as A. J. Foyt of Houston, only seven cars finished. They also nearly ran out of cars in 1951 when Lee Wallard, in a tiny, all-purpose Belanger Special, led only eight finishers home.

If Ward, who scored his first 500 triumph in 1960, is superstitious he might ignore the fact this is his 13th speedway start. However, the driver who should keep crossed fingers is Jones, the can't-miss driver who did miss in his two previous 500 starts. Jones has set the qualifying record for two successive years, this time averaging 151.153 m.p.h. in gusty winds.

Jones, 29, from Torrance, Calif., has consistently proved he can outpace anybody else on the speedway track, but his luck doesn't hold in the big race.

He led the 500 during his rookie year of 1961, had engine trouble and was awarded 12th place after finishing 192 laps. Last year, Jones led most of the race, but lost his brakes and wound up seventh.

The other former champions include one-time boy wonder Troy Ruttman, who won in 1962 at the age of 22, and 1960 winner Jim Rathmann.

The five rookies in the field are headed by Clark, the grand prix veteran who will start his Lotus-200 successive years, this time averaging 151.153 m.p.h. in gusty winds.

FAMILIAR FACE — Bobby Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., hears a few tips from car builder and owner Andy Granatelli before starting the Indianapolis Memorial Day 500-mile race today. Unser, who annually races in the Pikes Peak Hill-climb at Colorado Springs, qualified in one of the V-8 Novi-powered racers for this year's 500 Classic. The rookie driver was one of the fastest qualifiers in the field, averaging 149.421 m.p.h. for four laps. Two other Novis, one driven by Jim Hurtubise and the other by rookie Art Malone, have also made the starting lineup. (AP Wirephoto)

Twins Take Ninth Straight In 10-1 Romp Over Senators

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—It was Power's fourth grand slam—Minnesota's torrid Twins reeled off their ninth straight victory Wednesday night with a 10-1 romp over Washington as Dick Stigman run home in the eighth to pitched a two-hitter and Vic Power pitched a grand slam homer.

The Twins, winners of 11 of their last 12 now have put together their longest victory string since—as the old Washington Senators—they won nine in a row in 1949.

Power put it away with his two-out, bases-loaded liner over the left field fence in the fifth inning.

Fog Halts Dodgers, Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers-Milwaukee Braves game was called because of a heavy fog Wednesday night with the score tied 3-3 in the top of the seventh inning. The game will have to be replayed.

Time was called with two out and a Dodger runner on second after Milwaukee left fielder Eddie Mathews lost a fly ball in the dense mist but managed to make a circus catch.

The fog blew over County Stadium shortly after the game started. The umpires checked conditions by having fungoes hit to the outfield in the Milwaukee fourth but permitted the game to continue.

However, they finally called time in the seventh when they couldn't see several of the balls hit by Manager Bobby Bragan of the Braves or thrown by Plate Umpire Lee Weyer.

After a 32-minute wait, the game was called. All records will go into the record book.

Hockey Clinic Slated in June At the Broadmoor

The annual two-week clinic for young ice hockey players, conducted by Vic Heyliger, is scheduled to get underway June 10 at the Broadmoor World Arena. The clinic will last until June 24, with one session slated for the morning and another in the evening for older boys.

Heyliger is a former hockey coach at Michigan University and this past winter was coach of the West German National team, thru the season and into the World Championships at Stockholm, Sweden. While at Michigan, Heyliger led the Wolverines to 10 straight berths in the NCAA tournament, winning six times.

The clinic is planned mainly to teach fundamentals of the sport to boys of all ages in the Pikes Peak Region. There will also be some advanced techniques for the high school age players, in addition to the regular drills in skating, passing and shooting for all players.

Last year there were 60 boys in attendance at the clinic and Heyliger expects about the same number this summer. Application forms may be obtained at the ticket office of the Broadmoor World Arena, for those who didn't receive these in the mail.

White's Homer to Pavilion Gives Cards 3-2 Victory

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Bill White hit a home run to the pavilion roof off Don McMahon with one out in the 10th inning and brought the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-2 victory over the Houston Colts Wednesday night.

White's seventh homer made a winner of reliever Bobby Shantz, now 2-2, and secured the Cardinals sixth victory in their last seven games.

Howie Goss put the Colts in front in the fifth inning with his eighth home run, his third in two games. The blow came off Bob Gibson, who took over in the third after starter Ray Washburn suffered a muscle spasm in his right shoulder.

The Cardinals took a 2-1 lead against Bob Bruce in the sixth inning on a walk, George Altman's second hit in 32 times at bat—a single off Bruce's glove—Ken Boyer's blop single and Stan Musial's sacrifice fly.

British Lass Loses Skirt In Tennis Match

SURBITON, England (UPI)—How does a girl feel when she loses her skirt during a tennis match?

It happened Monday to Marilyn Greenwood, a vivacious, 17-year-old English player, who was just about to serve when her skirt deserted her, dropping around her ankles.

"It was terrible," said Marilyn. "I just hoisted it up and raced off the court."

Minutes later she reappeared—in shorts—and went on to defeat Margaret Lee, 2-6, 7-5, 6-4, in the opening round of the Surrey lawn tennis championships.

Baltimore Skein Ends In Athletics' 5-4 Win

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Ed Riffe, forced Alusk Wayne Charles' single with the bases loaded in the 11th inning gave Kansas City a 5-4 victory over American League leading Baltimore Orioles winning streak at single to left, scoring Ted Bownine games.

The loss, only the second for Baltimore in the last 16 games, trimmed the Orioles lead to three games over the New York Yankees rained out at Boston.

The A's had pulled into a 4-4 Kansas City 000 000 01—5 11 0 tie in the sixth inning on a homer—McCormick, Hall (6), McNall by Norm Siebern and the two (9); Stock (9), Stone 9; Miller clubs battled scorelessly until the 11th.

Dean Stone walked pinch hitter Fischer (1-1), L—Stone (1-2). George Alusk to open the 11th. Home run — Kansas City, Sie Bill Fischer, attempting to sac-bat. The five rookies in the field are headed by Clark, the grand prix veteran who will start his Lotus-200 successive years, this time averaging 151.153 m.p.h. in gusty winds.

The other former champions include one-time boy wonder Troy Ruttman, who won in 1962 at the age of 22, and 1960 winner Jim Rathmann.

Candy Spots Heads Horses Entered in Memorial Card

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Candy Spots, leading candidate for the 3-year-old title, and 13 aspirants to the handicap division crown head Thursday's Memorial Day horse racing program with rain an important late entry.

Candy Spots, whose only career defeat came in the Kentucky Derby, carries Rex Ellsworth's California silks against five other 3-year-olds in the 1 1/4 miles of the $100,000-added Jersey Derby at Garden State Park.

The 13, with Fred W. Hooper's Admiral's Voyage packing top weight of 127 pounds, were named for the one mile of the $100,000-added Metropolitan Handicap at Aqueduct. The race is the first of New York's triple crown for handicap performers. The others are the Suburban July 4 and the Brooklyn July 20 for which the division's two top stars—Kelsie and Beau Purple — are being pointed.

Rain fell Wednesday at both Garden State and Aqueduct and more of the same is expected. Candy Spots, odds-on choice, never has been tested on an off track. If the going is other than fast, his odds could lengthen since one of his opponents is the Maine Chance Farm's Get Around, a speedy runner who won the Withers Mile in the mud.

Others in the small field are Charles Morgan's Sky Wonder, beaten one-half length in the Withers; George D. Widener's Top Gallant; Elmendorf's B Major and Walnut Hill Farm's Pymelian.

With five starters the Jersey Derby winner will earn $78,795 of a total purse of $121,500. Willie Shoemaker again will ride Candy Spots.

The 70th running of the Metropolitan will be worth $116,100 with $75,465 to the winner if all 13 start. Braulio Baeza, who won the Kentucky Derby with Chateaugay, will be astride The Admiral, 5-2 choice in the early line.

Admiral's Voyage, who won the Carter Handicap May 4 after a long layoff due to injury, gives four pounds to Peter Salmen Sr.'s Crimson Satan and as much as 17 to his 11 other rivals. The field also includes, Decidedly, 1962 Kentucky Derby winner; Greek Money, winner of the Preakness last year, the erratic but mighty fast Hitting Away and Sunrise County, who definitely is a threat if on his good manners.

Decidedly carries 119, Greek Money 116, Hitting Away 116 and Sunrise County 121.

DU Icers Get Awards at Annual Banquet

DENVER (AP)—Two players on the University of Denver's Western Collegiate Hockey Association champions received two of three awards made at the annual athletic honors dinner Tuesday night.

Marshall Johnston, team captain, received the Barry Sharp Memorial Award on the basis of sportsmanship and over-all value to the team. The red vest award as the most valuable player was voted by his teammates to goalie Rudy Ums.

Basketball star Dennis Hodge won the trophy for outstanding athletic and scholastic achievement. He scored 1119 points in 3 seasons, second highest in university history.

The 21-year-old Richter was the Redskins' No. 1 choice in the NFL draft. McPeak said he was "extremely pleased to get him on the dotted line."

Pat Richter Signs Contract With Washington Redskins

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Pat Richter, Wisconsin's All-America end, signed a one-year contract Wednesday with the Washington Redskins of the National Football League.

Washington Coach Bill McPeak signed the 6-foot-5 1/2 inch, 230-pound star after outbidding the Denver Broncos of the rival American Football League and at least five major league baseball teams.

Contract terms were not announced. McPeak earlier was reported prepared to go as high as $40,000 in a combined salary-bonus offer.

Reds Protest ...

Mays Preserves Win With Catch for Giants

CINCINNATI (AP)—Ed Bailey's three-run homer and a game-saving catch by Willie Mays gave the National League leading San Francisco Giants a 5-4 victory over Cincinnati Wednesday night in a game played under protest by the Reds.

Mays made his spectacular catch in the ninth inning at the center field wall on Ken Walters' lofty fly.

Giants' starter Juan Marichal had scattered nine Reds hits until the eighth. But he walked Frank Robinson, who stole second and third. Marty Keough homered and Billy Pierce took over.

Bailey slammed a three-run homer in the sixth after Willie McCovey drew a one-out walk and Orlando Cepeda singled.

In the rowdy fourth inning, the Giants' Chuck Hiller and the Reds' starting pitcher, Bob Purkey, were thumbed out of the game for umpire disputes.

Jim Davenport reached second on an error and a passed ball in the fourth and scored on Cepeda's single. After the banishments, Bailey singled, setting up Felipe Alou's one-run single.

Reds' Manager Fred Hutchinson made his formal protest in the fourth, claiming Marichal had too many warmup pitches.

THE SOURCE OF PROGRESS
This naturally follows, a wife a law of nature, a law which is just as unchangeable and just as necessary to understand as is any other natural law, as for example the law of gravity. This particular law is known as the law of variation, and from the unrestricted operation of this law nature creates all human progress. The law of variation requires mothers to feed their unborn parents. It permits mothers to think differently and to act dif-

Against the background of my many years of service in the Navy, I make this declaration: I do not fear the Russian Army, or the atom bomb, or the hydrogen bomb, nearly so much as I fear this concept of using the law to relieve individuals of the responsibility for their own welfare and to deprive them of their freedom of choice. We can all see the danger of a military threat to our freedom. If we are attacked we will fight and we will win. But few of us appear to understand this insidious process whereby we use our own laws and our own government to destroy our own liberties just as surely as if some foreign conqueror had power over us.

Here is an example of how we are decimating ourselves. Let us suppose that some foreign power could confiscate the incomes of persons in America, and let us

I am very glad that we have a form of government that requires voting, because so long as this condition exists, there is nothing to prevent us from voting against these immoral laws that are leading the American people into bondage to their own government. It is still possible to turn back, and it is not yet too late to turn back. If we really want to face our responsibility, to pay the

For example, many of the slaveholders claimed that they knew what was "best for the slaves." After all, hadn't the masters "rescued" the slaves from a life of savagery? The advocates of government - guaranteed security also claim that they know what is best for the people. Many of them argue in the same fashion: "After all, haven't the American people conclusively shown that they are incapable abor groups from the consequences of their actions. The special tax privileges for producer and consumer cooperatives must not be repeated, or extended to all corporate business. The law which gives tenants special treatment at the expense of home-owners must be abolished. Whatever the sacrifice, our government must live within its income, and the amount of that income which is taken from the people must be drastically reduced. We must abolish all privileges and ask of government the truly equality which can possibly exist — equality before the law. In short, we must demand that government confine itself to the primary functions of protecting the life, liberty, and property of the individual — all individuals. Then each person will be free to do as he pleases so long as he does not interfere with the right of any other person to do as he pleases. Then each person will enjoy as much equality and security as it is possible for him to have in a world of admitted inequality and insecurity.

liberty may seem high to some people. I know that those groups and persons who now enjoy those special privileges will do all in their power to keep them — and to extend them. Even so, I have faith that the vast majority of the American people want liberty and are willing to accept the personal responsibility which liberty requires. I believe that the only requirement for the return to liberty is an understanding of what it is. I believe that we will understand it and that we will return to it. I have this faith in my fellow Americans because I believe they will know that upon liberty — and upon liberty alone — depends the survival of the species.

fresh on equal terms" is equality of opportunity to start at birth." If so, does this mean that parents who have shown exceptional qualities of skill, thrift and energy for their children, are to obtain no advantage over those who are responsible for nothing but irresponsible reproduction? Again, are children to be taken from their parents' care immediately they are born? If not, it is obvious that those children whose parents are of a higher order than others will be bound to give their children great ad-

But as it is, the REA stands for an archetype of a government agency that not only refuses to die when no longer needed but also uses every unfair means available to kill its investor-financed competition.

BETWEEN THE LINES

Pioneer With Blades

Haunting the house the past few days where some of his most fabulous feats were performed has been a young man on the threshold of a new career. During his athletic days, he and his brother brought more national and world-wide fame to the Pikes Peak Region than any other individual since ole Zebulon himself spied the famed mountain and erroneously proclaimed that it couldn't be climbed.

And in a way, Dave Jenkins, too was a pioneer of sorts. That is, he was one of the first to really justify the art of figure skating on the sports pages with his athletic approach to an event that therefore had more relation to a ballet on blades than an association with the sweatshirt set.

But competitive skating is all behind him now, asserts Jenkins. In a few days he will be tucking a sheepskin from medical school into an assortment of other moments of college days and he'll carry a new title of Doctor instead of World Champion as in the past.

"No, I have no plans to ever return to skating on more than a weekend basis," Jenkins said at rinkside to the Broadmoor World Arena, where he has been working out this week during an intermission at school. "And I'm really glad in a way that my skating days are over."

Dave's graduation from Western Reserve in Cleveland comes shortly and then he plans to stay in that area for his internship before going into practice of medicine.

During the last year of school, Jenkins has had little time for anything but study. "I haven't been able to skate more than up to the day that every skater once a month or so," Dave said, dreams of — the Olympic Games. "and then only for a few minutes at a time."

But from his skating this week, even only for recreation, it was plain that he hasn't lost the touch that made Dave Jenkins the name in the Olympics at Squaw Valley, Calif. In doing so, Dave earned an almost unheard of perfect score from most of the judges on hand.

The only trouble with winning the Olympics for a skater is that there are no more worlds to conquer in amateur ranks. So he took a year out from his ambition of finishing medical school and toured with the Ice Capades before his professional career was ended back in 1956 as best known as the younger brother of Hayes Allen Jenkins, who had just completed a successful cycle of winning the National, North American, World, and Olympic figure skating titles.

Hayes had followed in much the same skate marks as previous champs, such as Dick Button. This was somewhat artistic approach, with more emphasis on grace and a smooth flow to the skating than a muscular, athletic style.

Then Dave jolted the skating clan slightly with his crowd-pleasing expressive figures. He did everything that others had tried to get out of the habit of giving his more into each maneuver than all ever before, and then usually went a step beyond with jumps and spins which had only been dreamed of but never accomplished by his predecessors.

Jenkins was always exciting to watch, for more than his style. While he realized the importance of the fundamentals and worked the hard at the compulsory figures in his competition which display these techniques, Dave was also better at his free-skating routine. With the school figures always com-

Taking right up where brother Hayes left off, he skated his way to four straight sweeps in the National, North American and World competitions. It was all a build-up to the day that every skater once a month or so, dreams of — the Olympic Games. And finally, with vivacious Carol Heiss by his side and the overwhelming choice in the women's division, these two gave the United States a pair of gold medals in the Olympics at Squaw Valley, Calif. CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON—A political wind has started to blow around both Defense Secretary McNamara and Agriculture Secretary Freeman. But whether it is powerful enough to blow them out of the Cabinet depends on the rise or fall of President Kennedy's reelection chances.

At this stage there is no argument that both are political liabilities. On the other hand, the Administration view is that neither is a liability to the extent that the President risks losing a second term if he refuses to sacrifice one or both. So, for the time being, neither is on his way out or even tentatively tapped for another assignment, which is Kennedy's system for getting rid of a square peg in a round hole.

The Republican fires being built under McNamara and Freeman are due, respectively, to the TFX controversy and the wheat referendum defeat of the Administration's tight control policy.

In the case of Freeman, many Republicans talking loudest about how the wheat growers have repudiated him hope to high heavens that he stays in the Cabinet. They think they can make more hay in the farm states next year if he is still in there.

So, the biggest fires are being built under McNamara. Some Republican leaders are convinced that in the forthright Secretary and his all-powerful control of the $50 billion-a-year Defense Department they have found a genuine weak spot in the Administration's conduct of public business.

It appears certain that McNamara will have to make an overpowering case for himself and his activities when he goes before the Senate's McClellan subcommittee to wind up the TFX row in a week or two or he will have lost his grip and a lot of his usefulness. Kennedy himself must bear much of the responsibility for the troubles now besetting his Defense Secretary, long acknowledged the strong man in the Cabinet. For the President has pretty much let McNamara go it alone in his open battle with established military traditions to get a little sense-making efficiency into spending policies at the Pentagon.

WHITE HOUSE BLUNDERS DID NOT HELP MAC

McNamara has not only had to go it alone but had to contend with some weird and sometimes blundering handling of high-level affairs by the White House.

The dismissal of Adm. George Anderson as chief of naval operations and his subsequent appointment as ambassador to Portugal is a prime case in point. To all outward indications, Anderson had proved to be a highly competent, articulate and successful Navy chief. He was a smooth operator and he had received accolades for the way he ran the Cuban blockade last fall.

Anderson had done so well, his friends thought, that not only was he a cinch for another two-year term when his normal four ran out this summer but he probably would be in line for later appointment as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Then overnight, without the barest advance warning, the White House blurred the news. Anderson was thru. This wasn't normal operating procedure. There are usually "leaks" to clear the way for smooth shifts of military chiefs when their tenure expires.

If there was surprise about Air Force Chief Gen. Curtis LeMay getting a year's extension of his term, it was because he got any further consideration at all. LeMay long had worn a doghouse tag for his opposition to Administration thinking on the B-70, on Skybolt and later on the TFX.

And Kennedy hardly helped matters when he pretended he had an important and imposing job waiting for Anderson.

Youths End Up In Hospital After Drinking Spree

Two 15-year-old Security boys consumed an unknown amount of whiskey and ended up in the hospital, certainly sadder and in all probability wiser.

According to the sheriff's office one of them stopped breathing for a time while the other became unconscious. Deputy Sheriff Harry Orvis called for a respirator. One of the boys was lying in the yard while the other was in the house. Deputy Sheriff Woodrow Little, Vincent Demboske and Bob Souzga were also called to the scene.

Both of the youngsters were taken to St. Francis Hospital, and had their stomachs pumped. One was released while the other was held overnight for observation.

A LITTLE EXPLANATION MIGHT HAVE SAVED DAY

He has spelled out his plans in far greater detail than any predecessor and felt that was sufficient. Somewhere somebody gave him some sorry advice on the TFX. A proper explanation of his case, if there is one, to the proper legislators at the outset might have saved months of public brawling with the McClellan subcommittee and the development of a situation so confused that even the General Accounting Office threw up its hands and said it could not make a report.

The weakness lies in the fact that McNamara has charge of spending $50 billion in 50 states where elective officials draw their lifeblood and power and he has downgraded the importance of these same officials in his daily operations. Whether he can repair the damage is an open question. Defense has become politics at the highest level.

DA to Get Tough With Thieves and Car Strippers

District Attorney Don H. Higby said Wednesday that his office was adopting a "get tough policy" with car strippers and those accused of larceny of a motor vehicle.

Higby said that spring and summer seemed to be the most popular time for these activities. "In addition to the people who commit these crimes," the district attorney continued, "we have pawn or purchasers in garage men who invite this sort of thing by furnishing an outlet when they buy the stolen parts."

"From now on our attitude towards young men is going to change. The charge will be larceny from a motor vehicle or larceny of a motor vehicle."

Both charges rank as felonies and the possible sentence for each is one to 10 years in the state penitentiary.

Higby said that in the past his office had frequently filed a charge of petty larceny. "We tried to show some leniency, taking into consideration the defendant's age and possibilities of rehabilitation. There was also the matter of a young man having a felony chalked up against him. It just hasn't worked out," he concluded, "and has seemed to encourage these kind of offenses."

Poindexter Charged With Burglary, Larceny

A charge of burglary and larceny was filed in District Court Wednesday against Gary D. Poindexter, 21, of Ft. Carson.

According to information the defendant entered the home of Dean Jackson on the Old Stage Road May 4 and stole a portable television set and a rifle worth a total of $210.

Bond was set at $2,500 by Judge G. Russell Miller.

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS May 8 press conference in point WASHINGTON—A political wind has started to blow around the Defense Secretary McNamara and Agriculture Secretary Freeman. But whether it is powerful enough to blow them out of the cabinet depends on the rise or fall of President Kennedy's popularity.

At this stage there is no argument that both are political liabilities. On the other hand, the Administration views that neither is a liability to the extent that the President risks losing a second term if he refuses to sacrifice one or both. So, for the time being, neither is on his way out or even tentatively tapped for another assignment, which is Kennedy's system for getting rid of a square peg in a round hole.

The Republican fires being built under McNamara and Freeman are due, respectively, to the TFX controversy and the wheat referendum defeat of the Administration's tight control policy.

In the case of Freeman, many Republicans talking loudest about how the wheat growers have been hurt by McNamara's policy are the same ones who have been in the farm states next year.

So, the biggest fires are being built under McNamara. Some Republican leaders are convinced that in the forthright Secretary and his all-powerful control of the $50 billion-a-year Defense Department they have found a genuine weakness in the Administration's control of public business.

It appears certain that McNamara will have to make an overhauling case for himself and his activities when he goes before the Senate's McClellan subcommittee to wind up the TFX row in a week or two or he will have lost his grip and a lot of his usefulness.

Kennedy himself must bear much of the responsibility for the troubles now besetting his Defense Secretary, long acknowledged the strong man in the cabinet. Denver Man Found Guilty of Assault

A Denver man, William Roberts, 26, was given a 30 days suspended sentence in county jail Wednesday by Justice of the Peace James F. Quinn for assault and battery.

DA to Get Tough With Thieves and Car Strippers

District Attorney Don H. Higby said Wednesday that his office was adopting a "get tough policy" with car strippers and those accused of larceny of a motor vehicle.

Higby said that spring and summer seemed to be the most popular time for these activities.

"In addition to the people who commit these crimes," the district attorney continued, "we have pawn or purchasers in garage men who invite this sort of thing by furnishing an outlet when they buy the stolen parts."

"From now on our attitude towards young men is going to change. The charge will be larceny from a motor vehicle or larceny of a motor vehicle."

Both charges rank as felonies and the possible sentence for each is one to 10 years in the state penitentiary.

Higby said that in the past his office had frequently filed a charge of petty larceny. "We tried to show some leniency, taking into consideration the defendant's age and possibilities of rehabilitation. There was also the matter of a young man having a felony charged against him. It just hasn't worked out," he concluded, "and has seemed to encourage these kind of offenses."

There were six cases of drunk and one traffic violation in the Municipal Court on Tuesday night.

Judge Alan Asher found Jack organist and larceny charges against Gary D. Poindexter, 21, of Ft. Carson. According to information the defendant entered the home of Dean Jackson on the Old Stage Road May 4 and stole a portable television set and a rifle worth a total of $210.

Bond was set at $250 by Judge G. Russell Miller.

Simla News

By MRS. B. PARDE — 541-2255

A dramatization of the Chinese playlet, "Little Cloud's Pennies," was a feature of the Good News Club rally at the Simla Baptist Church Sunday evening, May 26 at 7:30.

The boys and girls sang songs and recited Scripture verses learned during the year. Awards were given for perfect attendance, Scripture memorization, bringing the most new members, and for the boy and the girl bringing the most guests to the rally.

Rev. Carl Smith, director of El Paso Co. Child Evangelism Fellowship, showed colored slides of Good News Camp.

One hundred thirty-eight boys and girls were enrolled in the Simla clubs this year. Good News Club is a non-denominational organization reaching boys and girls from pre-school through eighth grade in week-day classes and featuring Bible stories by flannelgraph, Scripture memorization, singing and missionary presentation. This year, as last, the local clubs led the state of Colorado in missionary giving.

The following served as teachers this year: Mrs. Robert Morris, assisted by Mrs. Weldon Morris, pre-school, second grade;

Mrs. Virgil Reeves, Loxie Richardson, assistant, third, fourth, Mrs. Richard Churchwell, Ernest Heidt, Miss Corene Johnson, Sherry Richardson, assistant, fifth, eighth, grade girls; Felix Higbe and Ted Reeves, assisted by Kenny Esarey, fifth, eighth grade boys. Mrs. E. A. Hartwell conducted the missions challenge and led the singing, with Agnes McPherson, accompanist. The community was invited to attend the rally.

The graduates of the Simla and Alta Vista High Schools were honored guests at a banquet Thursday evening, May 16, at the Baptist Church. Tables were attractively decorated with a lavender and white mums and miniature graduates. Rev. E. A. Hartwell welcomed the guests and Ray Page gave the response. Noel Nelson, guest speaker from Glen Eyrie, challenged the group with his message, "Row, Row, Row Your Boat," likening life for a graduate to that music.

The Norman Sullivan of Englewood, accompanied by Mrs. Robbie Kraft of Denver, presented several solo and duet numbers. Included among them stirring, "The Circuit Riding Preacher." Organ music by Mrs. Gene Alford was enjoyed during the banquet hour.

Other guests of honor included Mr. W. H. Hatcher, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Heidt, Miss Corene Johnson, Bill McClure, Rev. and Mrs. Delbert Hargreaves, Mrs. Noel Nelson, Mrs. Don Esarey and Mrs. E. A. Hartwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Eurich and Gordon were Sunday afternoon visitors at the home of George Eurich.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Markle entertained a number of guests by serving cake and coffee after the graduation Tuesday night.

The sixth graders had a weiner roast Tuesday afternoon at the Dick Young Ranch. The seventh and eighth graders had their picnic at the Earl Ratliff home Monday.

Agnes Thomas entertained her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Thomas, of Agate, Wednesday night.

Misal Cirbo of Denver visited her mother, Mrs. Viola Buss, over the weekend. Commencement services were held at Simla High School Tuesday, May 21, at 8 p.m., in the gym. The program was:

Processional, "Pomp and Circumstance," invocation, Rev. Hargreaves; Girls Chorus, "Oh Heavenly Sight"; eighth grade certificates, Ernest Heidt, Principal; Girls Chorus, "Londonerry Air," Elliot Hadley; address, "Youth, the promise of America," by Dr. Howard Bruner, Professor of Education Colorado State University; presentation of class, W. H. Hatcher, superintendent; award of diplomas, Chet Totten; presentation of scholarships, W. H. Hatcher; benediction, Rev. E. A. Hartwell; recessional, "Pomp and Circumstance," band.

The Helping Hand Club met at the home of Maude Hopson Thursday.

School's Out for 1,340 Kids in District RE-2J

School's out for 1,340 children good behavior only chaos can exist in school district RE-2J.

Report cards were picked up Wednesday, May 29 and the children started their long vacation which will be terminated Sept. 3 when school re-opens in the fall.

The end of the school year, always a busy time for students and teachers, wound up with a flurry of picnics and special events including the formal exercises for 114 eighth graders who were graduated at rites Monday night at the Florence High School gym.

The final week, which was short but hectic, started Monday with picnics for students at Brewster, Penrose, Emerson, and Coal Creek.

Tuesday, was vacation day for students but a work day for teachers throughout the district. Wednesday was report card day and final.

Barto Babitz, superintendent of schools, announced the tentative calendar of school activities for 1963-64 beginning Aug. 29-30 with a workshop for teachers followed by the opening of school Sept. 3.

Oct. 11 will mark the end of the first six-week period and Oct. 28-29 will be vacation time while teachers attend the annual CEA conferences.

Thanksgiving vacation will be Nov. 28-29 and Christmas vacation has been set Dec. 20 thru Dec. 29. Easter vacation will be March 26-30 and school will end next spring on May 29.

Babitz noted the only uncertain aspects of the schedule is the tentative listing for Christmas vacation.

"Dropout is a greater threat to our nation than fall out," Barto Babitz, superintendent of schools, told 114 eighth grade graduates Monday night at graduation exercises held at 8 p.m. at the Florence high school gym.

"The United States spent an estimated $18 billion on education for the school year 1961-62, yet today 1,000,000 young Americans between the ages of 16 and 25 are looking for jobs," the speaker said. "Almost all of these are 'drop outs' it is a sad fact that only two-thirds of today's ninth graders will graduate. We don't want this to happen to you."

Addressing the graduates and their parents, Babitz referred to the eighth graders as the "Class of 1967." He noted that graduation from the eighth grade used to be considerably more important to older generations when job requirements were not so important.

Today, he said, unskilled labor comprises over 90 per cent of the unemployed (some 4 to 6 million) while jobs are going begging for skilled workers, technicians, and professional people.

"It's getting to the point where essential to do common labor," Babitz said.

To keep from becoming a dropout, which has been termed the "great American Tragedy of our time," the superintendent of schools advised the students to "stay in school and keep going on in the classroom, don't waste your time, take advantage of any time you have to study and you won't have much trouble in high school and respect your teachers and go to them for help and suggestions, learn to live by the rules — without discipline or

GAME GUY AWARD

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky High School Athletic Association gives an annual honor to the Kentucky youth showing the greatest effort to overcome a physical handicap, called the "Game Guy Award." The 1963 winner, David Leon Wood, 17, of Glasgow, suffered badly burned feet as a child but starred in high school football and basketball and also played baseball.

McQUEEN GETTING ROYAL TREATMENT FROM STUDIO

HOLLYWOOD — Photographer John Dominis picked up an award from President Kennedy, packed his sleeping bag and flew west to shadow Steve McQueen for three weeks for a national magazine. The astronauts were in zine. First stop: Red Rock Canyon, where Steve entered the Green Horn Enduro, a 500-mile motorcycle race. Dominis followed the 645 motorcycles thru the desert, spent the night in his sleeping bag atop Green Horn Mountain, and finished photographing the race yesterday.

When Steve read I was given a Rolls Royce, he phoned to say he'd be right over to tune it up. We have a date for the next big premiere. He'll hire a chauffeur, outfit and drive me in style. Since his raves for "The Great Escape," McQueen is getting the royal treatment from Paramount. He moves into the star dressing room (Gary Cooper had it in the old days) at Paramount for "Soldiers in the Rain." "I'll try to live up to it," he said.

Dan O'Herlihy hit it off fine with Sidney Lumet in "Fail Safe," so the director gave him the lead in "Memory of Two Mondays," which will be filmed next spring. Dan's wife joined him in New York for a round of play going. Lumet's wife, Gloria Vanderbilt, is in residence here at the Chateau Marmont.

vacations resting for the next season. "When I watched the show on TV, I got the feeling that my wife and I were the only ones who saw it. But, believe me, I was impressed when I finally made a personal appearance." The astronauts were in zine. First stop: Red Rock Canyon, where Steve entered the Green Horn Enduro, a 500-mile motorcycle race. Dominis followed the 645 motorcycles thru the desert, spent the night in his sleeping bag atop Green Horn Mountain, and finished photographing the race yesterday.

Fred Zinnemann's son, Tim, worked as assistant film cutter in Rome for two years on "Come September" and "Pink Panther," then came home to work. But our union turned him down. It's ironic. He's a local boy, born, brought up and educated here, of Hollywood parents. However, Martin Juraw and Blake Edwards are letting him work with them as an observer on their net. By November he'll be able to join the screen directors guild. He hopes to follow in his dad's footsteps.

Carol Burnett didn't know whether to laugh or weep over a teen-ager's letter: "I've been told I'm not pretty. I'm gangling and awkward and not attractive to boys. Since you had to overcome these handicaps, will you help me?"

Among the sights in Madrid was a male fashion show put on by Petrocelli of New York. He showed us what men will wear this season. If they do, I hope none get in a bull ring. Among the creations: Bright colored brocade coats over ruffled shirt.

Bar Chief Says Criticism by Warren Just

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The president-elect of the American Bar Association said here Chief Justice Earl Warren was justified in his criticism of the bar's failure to speak out on three proposed constitutional amendments.

"We got our tails in a crack," said Walter E. Craig, who will become head of the 115,000 member organization this August. "Even though we did act, the bar was slow in acting and thus appropriately subject to some criticism."

In a speech to the American Law Institute last week, Warren said the bar's silence on the proposals—which would drastically alter the federal-state relationship—"is almost an abdication of its responsibility to the public."

The controversial proposals, put forward by some state legislative leaders, would set up a "Court of the Union" made up of state chief justices with authority to overrule the U.S. Supreme Court on matters affecting state-federal relationships; give state legislatures the primary responsibility now held by Congress to propose constitutional amendments; and deny federal courts jurisdiction over state reapportionment cases.

Just a day before Warren spoke the board of governors of the association had announced opposition to the first two and referred the apportionment question to a committee.

Craig said in an interview: "generally, the bar felt the Court of the Union and amendment proposals were so unworthy that action wasn't necessary. 'We felt they were not to be taken seriously, and their passage was a surprise.'"

So far this year, 16 state legislatures have completed action on resolutions proposing at least one of these amendments.

Recreation Measure Signed by President

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy signed into law Tuesday a bill to step up coordinated federal, state and local expansion of outdoor recreation programs.

The President said the prompt congressional approval of this administration-proposed measure was recognition "of the vital need to protect and wisely administer this nation's great heritage of outdoor recreation resources."

But he said the planning program provided in the bill would still require financing through a "land and water conservation fund" which the administration also recommended in a bill still pending in Congress.

The legislation will enable the Interior Department, through its new Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, to undertake planning, research and coordination tasks outlined by the commission and by Congress.

School's out for 1,340 children good behavior only chaos can exist in school district RE-2J.

Report cards were picked up Wednesday, May 29 and the children started their long vacation which will be terminated Sept. 3 when school re-opens in the fall.

The end of the school year, always a busy time for students and teachers, wound up with a flurry of picnics and special events including the formal exercises for 114 eighth graders who were graduated at rites Monday night at the Florence High School gym.

The final week, which was short but hectic, started Monday with picnics for students at Brewster, Penrose, Emerson, and Coal Creek.

Tuesday was vacation day for students but a work day for teachers, through the district Wednesday was report card day and final.

Barlo Babitz, superintendent of schools, announced the tentative calendar of school activities for 1963-64 beginning Aug. 29-30 with a workshop for teachers followed by the opening of school Sept. 3.

Oct. 11 will mark the end of the first six-week period and Oct. 28-29 will be vacation time while teachers attend the annual CEA conferences.

Thanksgiving vacation will be Nov. 28-29 and Christmas vacation has been set Dec. 20 thru Dec. 29. Easter vacation will be March 26-30 and school will end next spring on May 29.

Babitz noted the only uncertain aspects of the schedule is the tentative listing for Christmas vacation.

"Dropout is a greater threat to our nation than fall out," Babitz declared. "To do this, change is necessary and desirable to supplement those things that we now teach. In addition, we have to do an even better job of guidance to help our students over rough spots. Not only quantity, but also quality of education must be improved."

The school administrator emphasized that new techniques have to be provided to do a better job — such as programmed learning and educational television, whether it be open or closed circuit variety. Constant revision and critical evaluation are a must to keep up with our changing times and technical progress, he pointed out.

"We are grateful to the community for its support and interest in our young people," Babitz said. "There is another kind of help that is just as important and that is to do everything in your 'people of the community' power to encourage youngsters to stay in school and help us sell them the importance of education."

Nothing is more precious to us than our young people. Let us dedicate ourselves to the most important resource we have — our children, who are the future of the country and the world," he concluded.

M. R. Little, member of the school board, presented the diplomas to the class and formal presentation of the class was made by L. L. Lancaster, elementary school principal; and C.D. Snyder, junior high school principal. The Rev. Marshall Vaughn, Nazarene Church, gave the invocation and benediction. The junior high school band and chorus supplied the musical program.

Bar Chief Says Criticism by Warren Just

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The president-elect of the American Bar Association said here Chief Justice Earl Warren was justified in his criticism of the bar's failure to speak out on three proposed constitutional amendments.

"We got our tails in a crack," said Walter E. Craig, who will become head of the 115,000 member organization this August. "Even though we did act, the bar was slow in acting and thus appropriately subject to some criticism."

In a speech to the American Law Institute last week, Warren said the bar's silence on the proposals—which would drastically alter the federal-state relationship — is almost an abdication of its responsibility to the public.

The controversial proposals, put forward by some state legislative leaders, would set up a "Court of the Union" made up of state chief justices with authority to overrule the U.S. Supreme Court on matters affecting state-federal relationships; give state legislatures the primary responsibility now held by Congress to propose constitutional amendments; and deny federal courts jurisdiction over state reapportionment cases.

Just a day before Warren spoke, the board of governors of the association had announced opposition to the first two and referred the apportionment question to a committee.

Craig said in an interview: "generally, the bar felt the Court of the Union and amendment proposals were so unworthy that action wasn't necessary."

"We felt they were not to be taken seriously, and their passage was a surprise."

Recreation Measure Signed by President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy signed into law Tuesday a bill to step up coordinated federal, state and local expansion of outdoor recreation programs.

The President said the prompt congressional approval of this administration's proposed measure was recognition "of the vital need to protect and wisely administer this nation's great heritage of outdoor recreation resources."

But he said the planning program provided in the bill would still require financing through a "land and water conservation fund" which the administration also recommended in a bill still pending in Congress.

The legislation will enable the Interior Department, through its new Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, to undertake planning, research and coordination tasks outlined by the commission and by Congress.
